1930 Kingston Auto Show Space At a Premium

Spaces Wanted for 68 Cars, but It Was Necessary to Cut Number Down to 57—Association Reelects Officers—Three New Members Admitted.

Final arrangements for the tenth annual automobile show of the Kingston Automotive Dealers' Association were made by the organization Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. Representatives and dealers of virtually every make of car sold in Kingston were present at the meeting, most of whom have so many new makes and models of cars to show that their space allowance will have to be cut down. Space has been provided for 57 cars, but a check-up of the space wanted by the various dealers showed that some 68 spaces were asked.

Report of the advertising committee for the show informed the members that 100 posters had been distributed throughout the county and in city store windows. Another 100 will be ordered, according to the report, so that every store window in the city will be able to display a poster. Three canvas streamers will be displayed, one across the street at the armory, another at the head of Albany avenue and the third at North Front street, near Washington avenue. One hundred cloth signs for demonstrators and street cars will be ordered and will be ready for display within the next few days. A newspaper campaign will be begun next week in an effort to inform everyone in Ulster county of the show.

A music committee composed of J. D. Schenck, Abel Abernethy and Morton Lown was appointed by A. H. Chambers, president. Final arrangements concerning entertainment will be completed before the next meeting, to be held some time next week. Plans have been made to obtain an out of town speaker of importance to open the show, but the organization is not ready to announce the name of the individual.

Monroe Southard, secretary of the association, announced that spaces were available for accessory displays, but that organizations desiring to exhibit such stock in the show should get in touch with him within the next few days so plans could be made to include such displays.

Three applications for membership in the association were considered and accepted last night. The new members are the City Garage, displaying De Soto cars; Every Sales and Service, displaying Chrysler cars; and the A. and W. Auto Sales, displaying the Hupmobile line. These dealers will be allotted space in the show for their cars.

Officers for 1930.

Election of officers for the year 1930 was held. Morton Lown moved that the same officers that were in office during the past year be allowed to continue for the ensuing year. He then asked that a unanimous vote be cast by the secretary for the officers. The officers of the organization are A. H. Chambers, president; Roy Sutliff, vice president; J. D. Schenck, treasurer, and Monroe Southard, secretary.

All makes of cars sold in Kingston will be displayed at the show with the exception of the Auburn and Cord line. Many new features as well as color combinations will be presented to the public. The trend toward eight cylinder motors will bring several new light eights to the notice of the public. Features such as four speeds, multi-range gears, fuel pumps, special carburetors, novelties in interior design, devices for quick get away, exceptional comfort, adjustable seats and steering equipment, strengthened frames and bodies, non-shattering glass, more motor power and higher speeds, will be essential points in the display of new models. The association is making effort to make the tenth annual show the best in the history of Kingston.

MENDELSSOHN CLUB REHEARSAL FRIDAY

The Mendelssohn Club will hold its regular weekly rehearsal on Friday evening at 7:45 o'clock at the Elks Club. This will be the first appearance of the season of Prof. Elmer A. Tidmarsh, conductor of the club. Rehearsals have so far been conducted by the club's assistant conductor, Rolland Heermance, of Saugerties.

The question of holding a joint concert of Hudson Valley glee clubs in this city similar to the one held three years ago will be discussed and voted on. It might be now possible to have a chorus of 400 male voices on account of glee clubs now existing in Newburgh and Catskill and because the Mendelssohn Glee Club of Albany is now a member of the Associated Glee Clubs of America. For that reason, and because a large attendance is expected to be on hand to greet Prof. Tidmarsh, the officers request that every member of the club be on hand tomorrow night.

David Warfield Has Operation.

New York, Jan. 16 (AP).—The fact that David Warfield, the actor, was operated upon 3 weeks ago, was disclosed today with the announcement that he was entirely out of danger. The nature of the operation was not divulged. Mr. Warfield, who is rated one of the wealthiest of actors, has been in retirement the last few seasons.

Kingston Trust Company Officers

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Kingston Trust Company, held on Wednesday afternoon, January 15, the following were re-elected directors, their terms having expired:

Philip Elting, Arthur V. Hoornbeek, E. T. MaGill, Selig Oppenheimer, Jacob Rice, S. B. Schwarzwaelder, C. S. Treadwell.

Arthur J. Burns and H. S. Myers were elected inspectors of elections.

The directors re-elected the following officers: Philip Elting, President; William H. Van Etten, first vice-president; Frank R. Powley, second vice-president; Arthur A. Davis, secretary and treasurer; Gordon A. Craig, Ernest LeFever, Munroe Burger, assistant treasurers; John W. Eckert, trust officer.

No Cases Ready In County Court

Friday Morning DuBois Against Personeus Will Be Tried—Principe's Bond Continued—Tamboriano Gets Suspended Sentence.

With no cases ready out of five marked for trial, county court met this morning to adjourn until Friday morning when Case No. 14, Lemuel D. DuBois against Carrie Personeus, an action on contract, will be tried before Judge Joseph M. Fowler. Frank W. Brooks is attorney for the plaintiff and N. LeVan Haver, the defendant.

Casper Principe was arraigned in court on a charge of maintaining a public nuisance on Washington avenue. He leaded not guilty through his attorney, Roscoe Elsworth, and bond was continued until trial.

John Tamboriano, charged with buying fruit from I. D. Churchwell of Ulster Park and paying for the same with a worthless check, pleaded guilty through his attorney, N. LeVan Haver, this morning. He was given a suspended sentence by the court of from two to three years in Clinton State Prison. The court ordered the sentence suspended providing that the defendant pay $150 of the sum owed before the April term of court, and ordered him to report to probation officer, Robert A. Service who will make arrangements for the full restitution of the money owed.

Court was then adjourned until Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

Three Cases in Police Court

LeGrand Gue of Bloomington, was arrested Wednesday on a warrant sworn out by Mrs. Ethel B. Schumann of Eddyville, who charged him with disorderly conduct in calling her vile names in the lobby of the Van-Ross Hotel. This morning Gue in police court entered a plea of not guilty to the charge and Judge Culloton fixed the hearing for next Wednesday.

Benjamin Hair, a negro of East Kingston, while walking along North street Wednesday evening in an intoxicated condition fell into a mudbank and when the police arrived to escort him to jail they found Hair smeared with mud from head to heels. This morning Hair had removed as much of the mud as possible from his clothing when he was arraigned before Judge Culloton. On Hair's plea of guilty to public intoxication he was fined $5. Unable to pay he was remanded to the county jail for five days.

John Burke, who has no home, was arrested Wednesday by Sanitary Inspector N. J. Cook, on a technical charge of vagrancy. Burke desired a term in jail and his desire was granted when Judge Culloton imposed a sentence of thirty days.

Whelan Fortune Almost Wiped Out

New York, Jan. 16 (AP).—Samuel Untermyer, attorney, said in a statement published today that the private fortunes of the family of George J. Whelan, founder of the United Cigar Stores, had been almost wiped out in the collapse of the market value of the company's stock.

He blamed the recent crash in Wall Street and the cigarette price war for the situation in the company's affairs. Control of the company recently passed from the Whelans to interests headed by George K. Morrow.

Mr. Untermyer, as counsel for the Whelan interests, issued the statement in reply to a financial report made by the new management, and published reports concerning rumored examination of the company's accounts by the state attorney general's office. He also said that George J. Whelan had been seriously ill in a sanitarium for two months.

Fire on Hudson Street.

About 9:45 o'clock Wednesday evening fire broke out in a small frame shed at 103 Hudson street, owned by Hugh McCabe, causing an alarm of fire to be turned in from Box 28. The damage to the shed was not heavy.

'Phone Progress In Upstate N. Y.

Over $17,000,000 Spent for Plant Expansion—Increase of About 31,000 Telephones—Average Daily Calls Increased By More Than 170,000.

Telephone progress during 1929 in upstate New York, comprising all that portion served by the New York Telephone Company north of New York city suburban territory, was marked by expenditures for plant expansion exceeding $17,000,000 and a net increase of approximately 31,000 telephones, bringing the total in service to about 560,000. The average number of telephone calls originating daily increased by more than 170,000 to a total of about 2,555,000.

These figures are included in a summary of the year issued at Albany by J. W. Hubbell, Vice-President and General Manager for the company's upstate area. The statement outlines the year's progress statistically and describes some of the more important improvements in that section of the state.

Building Operations.

Extensive provision was made during the year for increased housing accommodations for both operating and administrative purposes. The nine-floor addition to the area headquarters building in Albany, now nearing completion, will add 140,459 square feet of floor space. In Buffalo, the six-story enlargement of the Church street building will soon be ready, increasing the available space by 118,000 square feet.

An additional central office building in Syracuse, started in May, is substantially completed. A central office building at Ellenville was finished and its switchboard installed and placed in service, and a building addition was completed at Kingston.

Properties for building purposes were purchased in Kingston, Elmira, Binghamton and Johnson City, and construction work begun on the site in Binghamton. In these cases, the projects call for the establishment of larger repeater stations on toll routes and later to accommodate dial central offices and toll switchboards as well.

The company now owns 68 buildings in the upstate area and occupies leased quarters in 197 others, with an aggregate floor space of 1,788,719 square feet, an increase during the year of 325,510 square feet.

The Telephone Network.

The wire mileage in the upstate system was increased in 1929 by 150,000, the present total being 2,190,000 miles, or enough to circle the earth nearly 88 times.

Some 125,000 miles of the wire added were in cable, bringing the total mileage enclosed in storm-proof lead sheathing to 1,990,000, or more than 90 per cent of the upstate wire aggregate. Moreover, 75,000 miles of the additional wire placed in cable are underground, so that with the close of 1929, 1,270,000 miles of telephone circuits are below the surface.

The toll cable system was substantially extended and improved during 1929. Completions of the year included the following:

The Newburgh-Catskill section, about 56 miles long, of the third New York-Albany toll cable.

During August, 1929, a submarine cable containing 264 pairs of conductors and weighing approximately 50 tons, was placed in the Hudson River between Newburgh and Beacon. The river at this point is about 4,800 feet wide and 50 feet deep.

Construction of approximately 33 miles of toll underground subway between Albany and Catskill is now practically complete. This is the first major project of this kind and is a part of the New York-Albany toll cable route. Twenty-five miles of this section is on private right-of-way.

Many Employes Added.

With its vast plant making the telephone company one of the largest taxpayers in New York, the army of workers necessary to build, maintain, operate and administer the properties and service makes the company also the largest employer of any single enterprise within the state.

In the upstate area, more than 1,000 workers were added in 1929, bringing the total in service there to more than 11,000. Throughout the company's territory as a whole the increase for the year was nearly 6,000, with a total of nearly 65,000 men and women employed in the telephone service at the end of the year.

SUFFERS STROKE WHILE ON DUTY AT INSTITUTION

Ellenville, Jan. 16.—H. B. Lauber of Ellenville, a guard at the institution for Defective Delinquents at Napanoch, suffered a stroke of paralysis at noon Wednesday while on duty at the institution. He was removed to his home in Ellenville, where he is still in a very serious condition.

Gets 18 Months and $2,000.

St. Louis, Jan. 16 (AP).—Heber Nations, former Missouri labor commissioner and newspaper publisher, convicted yesterday of conspiracy to violate the Volstead Act in connection with a beer grafting plot was sentenced today by Federal Judge Charles B. Davis to serve 18 months in Leavenworth Federal prison and pay a $2,000 fine.

To Raise $11,000 In Three Days For Boy Scouts

Ashton Hart, chairman of the Ulster County Boy Scout campaign, states that 200 men are working in the county to secure $11,000 in three days. This period is to begin January 21. It is planned to have the entire amount by the end of the 24th.

The organization is as follows: Chairman of the Special Gifts Committee, Arthur Burns; John Meehan, chairman District No. 1, comprising Kingston, Rosendale and Port Ewen; Fred S. Van Voorhis, chairman District No. 2, comprising Saugerties; V. T. Pine of New Paltz, chairman District No. 3, comprising New Paltz, Highland, Milton, Marlborough, Clintondale, Modena, Wallkill and Gardiner; H. W. Coons of Ellenville, chairman District No. 4; comprising Ellenville and Napanoch; John C. Porter, chairman publicity and arrangements.

Each district chairman has also a chairman for each of the fourteen communities in the county.

Mr. Hart was very much impressed, as he visited a number of these communities, with the interest manifested in every one of them in the importance of the Scout program, which trains future citizens and develops character in our youths.

One of the outstanding developments of the campaign organization is the number of men who are evincing a willingness to serve and who were not mentioned with the movement before.

Mr. Hart is convinced that this is evidence that every citizen feels his responsibility to maintain an efficient council. He has been assured by the Executive Committee that immediately following a successful conclusion of the campaign, a complete reorganization of the machinery of the council will take place.

The plans also call for a complete organization of an efficient Court of Honor, the organizing of a staff of deputy commissioners to conduct monthly inspections of all troops in the county and the creating of a troop organization committee whose function it will be to organize new troops and to strengthen those now in existence. There are factors which will be taken care of immediately.

A comprehensive training program for Scout leaders will be inaugurated very early.

The fact that there are approximately 500 Scouts out of 4,000 boys who wish to become scouts is evidence of a condition which can be corrected only by mobilizing a large number of men to carry out the various functions of the Council. The Council also proposed to adopt as an objective, that every scout advance in the program each year.

The objective in Ulster county will be:

To retain at least 60 per cent new scouts.

To register at least 25 per cent of all 12 year old boys annually.

At least 25 per cent of all Scouts to be of first class.

To avoid lapsing of over 10 per cent of troops.

To reach these goals, a great deal of assistance must be furnished the Scout leaders of the various troops of the Council who are already rendering such valuable service to the boy life of the county. In addition to this, it is essential that a year's program of public education be developed to enable parents, contributors, committeemen and all interested citizens to more thoroughly understand the methods and purposes of this very important work.

Elected Directors.

James P. Dwyer, John E. Weber and James A. Dwyer were elected directors of the Arrow Coal and Ice Co., Inc., the R. Lenehan Co., and of the Hanrahan Brick and Ice Co., at the meetings of the directors of each of said companies. John V. O'Connor and Agnes R. Murray were elected inspectors of election for each company.

Reformed Church Concert.

The First Reformed Church choir will give a concert on Thursday, January 23, at 8:15, in the chapel, under the auspices of Henrietta Wynkoop Guild. Tickets for the concert may be obtained from members of the Guild. The public is invited to patronize the concert.

League Adjourns.

Geneva, Jan. 16 (AP).—The fifty-eighth session of the Council of the League of Nations adjourned this morning shortly after the delegates convened for the morning meeting. Most everyone was in a hurry to leave Geneva, to attend the Naval Conference at London.

Voluntary Petition.

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in U. S. District court, New York city, on Wednesday by Isidore Shattan, dealer in clothing, shoes and furnishings for men and women on North Front street. Liabilities are listed at $26,873.05, and assets $16,946.94.

Secures Bank Position.

Walter Foster, an experienced graduate of Spencer's Business School, 237-239 Fair street, has secured through his own efforts a desirable position as assistant bookkeeper and clerk with the National Ulster County Bank and Trust Company, corner Wall and John streets.

Mme. Rethberg Given Ovation

Here in Last of Season's Concerts Under Patronage of Kingston Community Concert Association—Secure Memberships for Next Year's Concerts.

The last of this season's concerts given under the patronage of the Kingston Community Concert Association, with Elisabeth Rethberg, soprano, of the Metropolitan Opera Company as the artist occurred at the Kingston High School Auditorium Wednesday evening. In the ovation that the large audience gave the singer, it was very evident that Kingston music lovers, as always, not only expect the best in the way of musical programs, but are exceedingly discriminating and appreciative of such concerts.

Mme. Rethberg's personality was gracious and charming to a degree. She was entirely free from mannerisms, which so often spoil the singer of grand opera for the concert stage. And she has a rarely beautiful soprano voice which has both a clear, sweet purity of tone in the middle and upper register and velvety richness in the lower tones.

Perhaps one of the best tests of the really artistic merit of any concert is the memory of the program as one looks it over after the concert and recalls the varied numbers. Judging last evening's concert in that way, the opening numbers of the program, the aria of "Susanna", from the "Marriage of Figaro" by Mozart and "Hallelujah" by Mozart, were rare musical gems, and the setting given them by the accompaniment as played by Viola Peters at the piano was indeed worthy of the gem. Mozart's "Hallelujah" is rarely heard but the pure music of joy and glory therein is marvelous and Mme. Rethberg's singing of it was masterly.

All of her second group of songs were enthusiastically received. "A Chloris" by Reynolds Hahn which offered a fine medium for the velvet quality of her voice; "Le Papillon" by Fourdrain and the "Jewel Song" from Faust (Gounod), wherein both musically and dramatically, Mme. Rethberg was especially at home, giving her hearers a fine bit of operatic music always enjoyed by music lovers.

In the third group two songs linger beautifully in the mind of the listener because they were so beautifully sung: "O Kuehler Wald" by Brahms and "Auf Fluegeln des Gesanges" by Mendelssohn. "Botschaft" by Brahms and the dramatic "Gretchen and Spinnard" by Schubert also delighted her audience and she graciously sang an encore.

During the intermission that followed, the Rev. Dr. Frank B. Seeley in behalf of the Kingston Community Concert Association said that it seemed almost a sacrilege to break the spell of the wonderful music of the evening with what he had to say. Yet what he had to say had to do with the possibility of having in the future, as in the past two years, other evenings of beautiful music together. Slips would be handed out upon which those in the audience could express their wish for membership another year, paying $5 for a ticket entitling the holder to three fine concerts, by signing their names and designating how many tickets they would want. Dr. Seeley explained that that would greatly facilitate the work of arranging for next year's concerts, and in closing paid a glowing tribute to the little group of women who by hard and indefatigable work had made possible the concerts of this year. The slips were then passed out by the ushers.

The one group of songs following the intermission was that of four songs in English. In "Phillis Has Such Charming Graces", Old English, Mme. Rethberg sang some exquisitely beautiful tones, lifting the charming little song quite into the classic realm. Two other delightful songs were: "By a Lonely Forest Pathway" by Griffes and "An Old Song" by Annabel Buchanan. The singer put the very vitalizing spirit of spring into her rendition of "A Spring Fancy" by Densmore.

As soprano from the Metropolitan Opera Company, the audience had been waiting with keen anticipation for the final song, "Dich Teure Halle" from Tannhauser by Wagner, and were richly rewarded for their waiting, by the singer's musicianship and interpretation of this operatic number, giving Mme. Rethberg continued and most enthusiastic applause. She left a lovely memory of real music with her audience as she gave as an encore "Gute Nacht' Gute Abend".

No account of the concert would be complete without special mention of the completely musical and exceedingly artistic accompanying of every number by Miss Viola Peters, who fairly radiated a musical atmosphere in her graceful and sympathetic fulfilling of the musical content of each number.

To Investigate Holding Companies.

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP).—The Parker resolution to authorize an investigation into railroad security holding companies by the Interstate Commerce Committee was given preferred status on the House legislative calendar today by its Rules Committee.

On Prohibition's Tenth Birthday

News From Along the Firing Line In Widely Separated Sectors.

(By The Associated Press)

The close of the first decade of national prohibition found the anti-liquor laws figuring prominently in the news from widely separated sections of the nation.

In Washington congressional committees prepared legislation to carry out recommendations for improved enforcement sponsored by President Hoover and the law enforcement commission.

Chairman Wickersham of the commission issued a statement supporting the constitutionality of the proposal for trying minor prohibition cases before United States commissioners.

Leaders of the Anti-Saloon League met at Detroit and began sessions with addresses declaring for "an aggressive, militant fight until country and city submit to the law."

An announcement was made at Lansing, that Michigan state police will use machine guns and tear bombs to prevent rum running.

Governor Green of Michigan, commuted the sentences of five prohibition law violators serving life terms under the state's former criminal code.

Governor Dillon of New Mexico, recommended the use of the army to patrol the border as a test of the dry laws.

Governor Richards of South Carolina, recommended to the state legislature that buyer and seller of liquor be made equally guilty, with a jail sentence mandatory on the second conviction.

A federal judge at Jacksonville, Fla., ruled customs and other officers must have definite knowledge that an automobile contains liquor before the vehicle can be searched.

Hold Wells Inquest Friday

An inquest will be held at the court house Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with Coroner Howard B. Humiston presiding, to make inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the accident at Stone Ridge last Saturday evening when Deputy Sheriff P. W. Wells was struck by an automobile and fatally injured.

While Mr. Wells was walking along the highway near his home a car driven by Howard Anderson of Accord struck him, tossing him some distance to the pavement and inflicting fatal injuries. Mr. Wells died before he could be taken to a doctor's office.

An autopsy performed at the direction of District Attorney Frederick G. Traver disclosed a fracture of the skull, fracture of the leg and a number of severe internal injuries. At the suggestion of Mr. Traver an inquest was called.

Greene Ousted As Chairman

The contest over the chairmanship of the Republican party in Albany county was brought to a head Wednesday evening when a meeting was held at Centennial hall where a vote was taken, amid much disorder, which finally resulted in the ousting of George Greene, a former Kingston man, by a two to one vote. Total vote based on the 1928 gubernational ballot was 13,000 for Greene and 26,000 against. Following the vote Judge Isadore Bookstein was elected chairman and took charge of the meeting.

Mr. Greene, following the vote, announced that he "accepted the inevitable" but insisted that he still believed the whole proceeding was illegal and could be so sustained.

Home of "Boss" Eller Bombed.

Chicago, Jan. 16 (AP).—The home of "Boss" Eller—City Collector Morris Eller, political chief of the "Bloody Twentieth" ward—was bombed early today. Eller and Mrs. Eller were shaken but unhurt as the black powder bomb tore at the rear entrance of the Eller apartment in a three-story brick building. The maid, Anna Seaman, was cut and bruised by plaster that fell from her bedroom. A section of the bedroom door was flung across the room and imbedded in the wall above her head. The Eller chauffeur, asleep in the basement, was not injured.

Domestic:

Washington—House leaders decide to rush bills for reorganization of prohibition forces.

Detroit — Anti-Saloon League speakers call for unrelenting militancy in prohibition enforcement campaign.

Los Angeles—Two earthquakes shake Southern California.

New York—Terranova arrested on charge of acting in concert with men who held up Vitale dinner.

Chicago—High water causes heavy damage in Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Kentucky, and Missouri, driving families from homes in bitter weather.

Denver—Rocky Mountain region shivers as temperatures range from few degrees above zero to 28 below.

Dixon, Ky.—Bodies of two men recovered from coal mine sealed after explosion Saturday.

Foreign:

S. S. George Washington—Senators Reed and Robinson support Stimson's view that Anglo-Japanese and Franco-Italian problems do not concern Americans at naval conference.

London—Dispatches tell of wrong drug in eye test blinding 40 children at clinic in Kesarion, near Athens.

Highly Humorous

Harry, age four, came home from Sunday school chuckling. "What did you do at Sunday school?" asked his interested mother. "Teacher told us a funny story," giggled Harry. "A funny story," echoed his mother. "What was it about?" "It was about the adventures," was the reply, "of Shadrach Meshach, and a billy goat."

HEALED HIS RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. I had decided my only hope of recovery was an operation. Everything I tried did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely healed my rupture. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I will give full information about how you may find a complete recovery without operation if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 778E, Marcellus Ave., Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and tells in a simple way about treating cured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of the rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

New York—The queen of the links is looking for new worlds to conquer. Glenna Collett, golf star, who has had a trifle of experience in court tournaments, is taking lessons in tennis. Mary K. Browne, once queen of the courts, will be eligible to compete for Glenna's golf title this year. She once beat Glenna in a national golf championship.

Tarrytown, N. Y.—Business ethics of parents must meet the standards of the Highland Manor School, a private school for girls, before their daughters will be accepted as pupils, Dr. Eugene H. Lehman announced to an assembly of the 90 students that one girl had been refused admittance because her parents were engaged in improper business practices. He said later that the couple were wealthy and of some prominence. They are in some legitimate business which he did not explain other than it was not bootlegging. He believed it is the duty of schools to raise the business and social ethics of parents.

New York—There has been much ado about noise in the city and a special municipal commission is studying things. Among the results so far have been apologies. A bank erecting a skyscraper in Wall street wrote neighbors regretting the unnecessary din. The framework of an apartment building in Gramercy Park bears a sign "Our sincere apologies to our neighbors for the unavoidable annoyance this hammering must occasion."

New York—Filmdom is looking forward to a big week-end party at the Long Island home of Gilda Gray in celebration of her marital freedom and is expecting a revelation as to a many-carated diamond it has noted. A decree of divorce from Gil Boag, granted Gilda at Fort Washington, Wis., has just become effective insofar as permission to remarry is concerned.

Southend, England—The Rt. Rev. Henry A. Wilson, Bishop of Chelmsford, would like to see a prize for girls' gumption established. "It is not people with brains but people with gumption who get on in the world," he said in an address at a girls' school here.

London—The birthrate in England for the third quarter of 1929, as figured by the registrar-general, is the lowest in history.

Hany, Hungary—The trumpeter of the fire brigade, whose job it was to make plenty of noise and warn other traffic out of the way of the apparatus, is in the Hoosegow. He confessed setting ten fires after he was caught lighting a haystack.

Geneva—The League of Nations is inquiring as to the extent of rum-smuggling throughout the world and the measures various nations are taking against it. It seeks data for possible international cooperation.

Matters Before The Surrogate

Letters of administration have been granted in surrogate's court to Margaret Hill in estate of Andrew D. Hill, town of Shandaken, who died intestate. Value of estate more than $5,000 real; more than $75,000 personal. V. B. Van Wagonen, attorney for petitioner.

The personal estate of Margaret Gray, Ellenville, who died January 4, 1930, and whose will executed July 14, 1926, has been admitted to probate in surrogate's court, is given as $5,000. Letters testamentary have been issued to James R. Comfort, Hoboken, N. J., who is named as executor. One dollar is bequeathed to Margaret Wehner, niece; rest and residue to James A. Comfort, nephew. Cleon B. Murray, attorney for petitioners.

Letters of administration have been granted to Christopher C. Schoonmaker in estate of Palestine Burger, Ellenville, who died intestate. Value estate $2,100 personal. Raymond H. Cox, attorney for petitioner.

Letters of administration have been granted to Joseph Feldman in estate of John L. Feldman, Eddyville, who died intestate. Value of estate $2,000 real; $6,500 personal. J. Edward Conway, attorney for petitioner.

This Prize Pumpkin Might Make 400 Pies

Lexington, Ky.—Mack Combs, Perry county farmer residing near Hazard, southeast of this city, lays claims to being the champion pumpkin raiser of Kentucky, and he backs up his claim with an exhibit from his farm.

His pumpkin weighs exactly 100 pounds and was grown on a vine 76 feet long and 36 feet from the hill from which the vine sprouted. It was the only pumpkin on the vine. Hundreds of people have expressed the belief that it is the largest specimen ever grown in Kentucky.

Various estimates have been advanced as to the number of pumpkin pies this mammoth pumpkin would make. County Judge K. N. Sayler, considered an authority on such matters, expresses the opinion that the Combs pumpkin could easily produce 400 pies of the medium size.

Mr. Combs has been offered $10 for the pumpkin, but so far has declined to part with it for that price.

Art of Giving

He who gives things only gives little. The real part of any present is the imaginative sympathy through which one has understood and responded to a desire in some other human being and has put something of one's self into the choice of that which will gratify this desire.—Woman's Home Companion.

LIVE BUSINESS MEN ADVERTISE IN THE FREEMAN

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence

You men who would keep trim and fit . . . you women who covet the tantalizing curves of the truly modern figure—when tempted to do yourself too well, light a Lucky instead. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately. When your eyes are bigger than your stomach, light a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that lithe, youthful figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

Misery in Central Mississippi Valley

Chicago, Jan. 16 (AP).—The central Mississippi valley was the land of freezing waters today.

Near-zero temperatures, settling over the broad valley, choked rivers into vast rough mirrors of ice and slush and made misery more rampant among those driven from their homes in the flooded regions.

Unseasonal mildness filled the valleys of Mississippi tributaries with melting snows; rivers run wild beyond flood stages—but the freeze today halted a further rise.

Along the Wabash in Indiana conditions equalled those of 1913—still recalled as the year of flood disaster.

In Vincennes, the water encircled sections of the city; more than 500 families were driven from their homes when waters of the Wabash lapped the boulevard named for George Rogers Clark.

In the north, at Terre Haute and Clinton, the situation was similar. In the former city, the Wabash was seven feet above flood stage, and the crest still to be reached. At Clinton, high water closed coal mines and cut off hundreds of families with the closing of roads.

At Decker, ten miles from Vincennes, the Wabash burrowed itself through the levee and flooded thousand of acres.

Along the White river of Indiana conditions were practically the same. National Guardsmen were called out to help save the White river bridge at Hazleton.

None of the river towns reported loss of life. Boats were necessary in many areas to remove marooned residents.

Swirling into Illinois the flood grasped the little Wabash, Kaskaskia, Embarrass and Vermilion rivers. Near Danville, a levee across Lake Vermilion was damaged while farther north, near Rankin and Hoopeston, backwash of the Wabash closed two state-line highways.

First Tow on Way Up River

The first tow of the season is now on its way up the Hudson river from New York and is expected to reach here some time on Friday. The tow, which consists of six boats, is in charge of the tug Bavier of the Cornell Line.

This morning the tug Rob again steamed down the river as far as the Esopus light and found ice conditions about the same as on Wednesday. There is quite some floating ice in the river between Kingston Point and Esopus island, but not enough to interfere with the tow bound upriver.

SERVICES FRIDAY EVENING AT TEMPLE EMANUEL

Rabbi Aaron H. Lefkowitz will speak Friday evening at 7:30 at Temple Emanuel on "Disraeli—England's Master Mind." He was better known as Lord Beaconsfield, having been made an Earl by Queen Victoria in appreciation of his diplomatic foreign policy in acquiring for England the control of the Suez Canal with her subsequent coronation as Empress of India. This was in the year 1877 when Disraeli was serving as Prime Minister. Except Queen Victoria herself, Disraeli is remembered more widely than any other Victorian. His death is annually observed in England on April 19th, and is known as Primrose Day. Rabbi Lefkowitz will discuss the life and personality of this Jewish Genius who set England's national colonial policy. All are welcome to the services.

DRANK WINE, WAS SUSPENDED, COMMITTED SUICIDE

Corinth, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP).—Suspended from high school for drinking home-made wine in the school building, Eugene Clothier, 14 years old, committed suicide last night.

Principal Herbert A. Beckman of the Corinth High School said he found young Clothier and another boy drinking home-made wine in the cloakroom yesterday and suspended Clothier when investigation disclosed he had brought the wine to school. The boy was in his first year at the high school.

Clothier was found dead in bed in his home in Saratoga avenue this morning, with a discharged .22 caliber rifle beside him and a bullet wound in his chest corresponding to the caliber of the rifle.

In the absence of a coroner, Dr. A. J. Parmentier examined the body and declared the wound was self-inflicted.

Balance Important to Becomingness of Dress

Balance is important to the becomingness of a dress especially when one is after fifty, says the fashion editor of the Woman's Home Companion. It takes a perfect figure to wear an off line. A panel that starts in the front, runs over the shoulder and points in the back balances the front and back of a dress. In the frock illustrated it also serves to keep the attention on the front and away from the side where an older figure may bulge. Points interlocked break the line pleasantly and give style. The dress is planned for crepe satin made with the panel and cuffs of the shiny side. Fashion's approval of the deep tones of brown, green and red gives the woman after fifty an opportunity to select a becoming and smart shade for this frock. In addition to crepe satin this design is also suited to less formal fabrics such as soft tweed or wool crepe with vestee of silk pique.

New High-Brow Headgear Shows Forehead, Eyes

Hats are back—two inches and more. They flew backward in amazement at the startling changes in fashion, and just stayed back! At least that is how they look. For instance, instead of wearing our hats down so that only one eye is visible, now not only both eyes must be seen but a goodly portion of the forehead as well, says Jane Warren Wells in Farm and Fireside.

Your hat must be pulled well down on the neck in the back, and up in the front. It really is a flattering fashion, especially if you coax some important little locks out at the sides.

Always put your hat on from the back and see that it is perfectly straight on the head. This year so many of the hats have a pronounced side line that you have to be careful to see that the center front of the hat comes exactly in line with the eyes. If your hair is long and a becoming hat is hard to find try thinning out the hair in back, leaving just enough to tuck the ends in a modest french knot.

Long Gloves Worn With Formal Evening Outfit

From being a mere rumor, the acceptance of the long glove with the formal evening costume has become an established fact. Many smart women are wearing long gloves of white, ivory or pale pastel shades, wrinkled below the elbow and clasped with wide glittering bracelets.

Black suede gloves in sixteen-button length are also being adopted, not only with the all-black gown of flat crepe or chiffon, but also with the new dead-white frocks which rival black in popularity. Especially effective is the black glove with such a costume when combined with black and white jewelry of baguette crystals, brilliants and onyx.

There is much interest in the long colored suede gloves—red, green and powder blue—sponsored by Worth as a contrast to the black or white evening dress, and designed to be worn with matching slippers. These, however, are reserved for the woman who doesn't object to a dash of the theatrical.

Collars, Vestees, Gain in Favor This Season

Neckwear plays its delightful part in the new mode, and this is only proper since its reappearance is so charming. By reason of the simplicity observed in many afternoon gowns, with their molded lines and longer skirts, collars and vestees are increasingly important.

Almost any fabric is being used in the new neckwear, by the way. Lace leads, of course, but fur has entered the race and the smart woman may have very wisely chosen the warm and lovely throat rather than just the lovely one.

Most of the chic neckwear is the non-detachable sort. Not a little of it is applied lace on the front of the black frock.

NEWLY ORGANIZED EPWORTH LEAGUE AT STONE RIDGE.

Stone Ridge, Jan. 16.—The young people of Stone Ridge are in a worldly way well provided for. They have a community hall where they are welcomed to dance, movies and entertainments of various kinds. There are several places where they may deposit their money and receive in exchange sweets, soft drinks, tobacco and cigarettes. Sad, but true, there are also places where they may obtain intoxicating beverages. Will any one, two or more of these pleasures have any special influence on the young people to help them become true citizens of the highest type?

The Stone Ridge M. E. Church has awakened to the fact that if our young people of today are to make the Stone Ridge of tomorrow a community of which our country may be proud, and one that will meet with God's approval, the church must offer more to the young people.

A number of the young folks met at the church recently to organize an Epworth League. They very wisely chose Miss Carol Nilssen as president with Mrs. C. P. Harder as first vice president.

Miss Nilssen is very wide awake and on her job, shaking hands with all the young people she meets and inviting them to come to the Epworth League meetings.

It has been proven that no matter how efficient the leaders of any society may be, they cannot reach the goal without being backed by interested workers. Let us all put our shoulders to the wheel and help Miss Nilssen and Mrs. Harder in rounding up all the young people of the community who are not already members of some other church organization. No matter what their denomination may be they will be welcomed to this society.

The weekly meetings will be held at the church on Sunday evenings. On the last Friday evening of each month they will hold a business meeting, followed by a social time and refreshments.

Mrs. Harder is in charge of the Sunday evening meetings and as the numbers increase the meetings will become more interesting. All of the young people are urged to be present Sunday evening.

200 EX-SERVICEMEN ENJOY A. E. F. COMEDY

Approximately 200 ex-servicemen enjoyed the A. E. F. farce comedy, "What Price Charmaine, or the Madamoiselle from Bar-le-Duc" presented Wednesday night in the American Legion Memorial Building by a cast of Legionnaires.

The comedy, written by Attorney Thomas F. Coughlin, a member of Kingston Post, who also took part in it, was very humorous and provoked much laughter during a period of an hour and a half, which seemed to pass very quickly.

Tommy Murray as Isidore Goldfish and Jerry Martin as Mlle. Charmaine La Trene, who were featured members of the cast, took their parts to perfection.

Refreshments, consisting of hot dogs and coffee, were relished after the comedy, which was in the form of a mock trial.

Among the ex-servicemen who attended the skit was a delegation from Joyce-Schirick Post 1386, Veterans of Foreign Wars, who received a special invitation from the American Legion.

Mexico City, Jan. 16 (AP).—The Mexican foreign office announced today, that the consulate at Laredo, Texas, closed for some weeks, will be reopened tomorrow.

ARREST MAN WANTED FOR PORT EWEN ASSAULT

Thomas J. Cunningham was picked up at Newburgh Wednesday by Sergeant Lockhart and Trooper Baker on a bench warrant and brought to the county jail. Cunningham is one of two young lads who is charged with having held up a man named Hummell, at Port Ewen some time ago. He was indicted by the grand jury on a charge of assault and with his companion admitted to bail. Later when the court required his presence his bondsman was unable to produce Cunningham.

Sergeant Lockhart took up an investigation and located Cunningham at Newburgh, where he was working on the Steamer Odell. He had been in Kingston on many occasions, but his bondsman had not been able to locate him.

Cunningham's companion is on bail.

RIGID LITERALISM.

It is well that Professor MacIntosh of Yale has appealed to the United States Supreme Court against the decision of the Federal District Court of New Haven denying his application for citizenship, for the matter would seem to be one calling for consideration by the highest court of the country. The Rev. Dr. MacIntosh is professor of theology in one of our greatest universities, he served as chaplain during the World War, and has long been a resident of this country. His application for citizenship was denied because he balked at the question: "Do you swear to bear arms in this country's defense if called on for military service?" Dr. MacIntosh objected that his "first allegiance must be to the will of God" and stated or intimated that he could not "bear arms" in a war unless he regarded it as morally justifiable.

Ordinarily in war time the government of the country must, of course, be absolutely supreme, and ordinarily the required oath should be taken. But to many minds it seems absurd to have required it in literal form of several women who recently were denied citizenship because they declined to give oath that they would "bear arms". It seems almost as absurd to require it in literal form of Dr. MacIntosh, a minister, who is over military age. Why this late rigid literalism, even in the case of women, after more than a century of the practice of granting exemptions and allowing for exceptions? The Quakers have never been forced to bear arms against their will, and even other "conscientious objectors" (on religious grounds) were exempted no longer ago than the World War. The new attitude is hard to understand.

THE PRESENT OUTLOOK.

As it is now generally recognized that business has been over-stimulated in recent times and that some sort of let-down was inevitable, it is no surprise to find the Wall Street Journal observing that "there is at the moment nothing in sight to cause business to return rapidly to the tempo of the early summer or spring of 1929." And as a steady and sure advance of business is preferable to an artificially created pace, the Journal's statement by itself need not be regarded as discouraging, but there is matter for more serious consideration in its further observation as follows:

From the 1920 slough of depression there was leverage to raise the country in unsatisfied requirements for power, housing and business quarters, transportation needs, clothing and innumerable commodities still remaining from the wartime suspension of ordinary production. America was yet to be motorized and other countries to be in part put on wheels, while some entirely new necessities, such as radios and airplanes, became factors in the production and distribution of wealth. Not much in the way of a corresponding suspended or deferred demand for goods is now discernible.

In other words, there is not now the opportunity for a rapid "return" that there was after the depression of 1920 and the upgrade climb is likely to be slower and longer. But may it not be doubted whether leverage is altogether absent for lack of "unsatisfied requirements" and demand for "new necessities"? Has it not been predicted that popular aviation, for example, is eventually to rival popular motorization? In any case the luxury-loving, pleasure-seeking American public seems bound to create more "necessities" as time goes on, involving further industrial expansion.

BARGAINS IN THE SENATE.

Senator Blaine believes in supporting his argument with the help of concrete illustration. The other day he astonished the members of the upper chamber by holding up for their inspection three silk dresses, all "bargains", as soon developed. The first he described as new style, well made, of an excellent quality of silk; not a silk mixture, nor a cheap foreign product, but a pure silk, woven, printed and made up in the United States; and costing at retail only $10.75. The second model exhibited cost, he said, for $6.50; and the third, of the same kind of silk, "of a smaller size, slightly different in the tailoring, used by young women, in very common usage in the offices and upon the streets, of daily utility, has a retail price of $3.75."

As he was not advertising anybody's bargain counter, Senator Blaine did not give the address of the store or stores where these wonders can be bought. But if multitudes of Washington women had known what he was to bespp to, the Senate galleries would have been rushed and probably the Senator himself would have been besieged with a view to drag the information out of him. The Senator's only object, it seems, was to prove that silk is no longer a luxury product and that therefore the tariff on silks should not be increased. Whether his method was as effective as it was novel is as yet uncertain.

Bootleggers having found a way to "cook" out of industrial alcohol the gasoline added to make it unpalatable, Prohibition Commissioner Doran is now reported to have issued a new formula "requiring manufacturers to put into their alcohol something which can not be 'cooked' out so easily and something which will blind, cripple and kill the people who drink it." This looks as if the new preparation may be counted on to "cook" almost as effectively as did the fires into which the old-time Massachusetts Puritans piously flung alleged witches.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

KNOWING YOUR SELF.

I have spoken before about three types of physique (a) Where body was short and narrow and legs long. (b) Where body was long and broad and legs short. (c) Where there was a fairly wide and long body, and a fairly long pair of legs.

The idea was to try and point out what was likely or rather more likely to happen to each class as far as ailments were concerned.

The individual with the narrow body and long legs was likely to have a tendency to chest ailments, chest narrow also not enough room for stomach to lie crossways in the abdomen; likely to hang low, and have stomach trouble.

Now as stomach is important from digestive and building up standpoint, this is a serious matter because chest and tuberculous condition require plenty of good nourishing food.

With the long wide body and the short legs, the tendency would be to eat too much, hence kidney, liver, and heart conditions would be more likely to ensue.

A group of New York physicians studying the matter, have gone much further and are trying to work out the classification according to the all round constitution of the individual.

One idea was from the race standpoint. They felt that this would be rather difficult, because in the hospital where they were studying this matter, were three cases, lying side by side, of perforated ulcer of the stomach. The likeness of the three from a physique standpoint was striking, the measurements and proportions being almost exactly alike. Nevertheless these three men sprang from three different races. One was Anglo-Saxon, one a Pole from middle Europe, one an Italian from the shores of the Mediterranean Sea".

However these research men are working out a system whereby the individual is studied from four standpoints.

1st. His anatomy or body shape—size of heart, lungs, condition and position of abdominal organs, blood, teeth, and so forth.

2nd. From the physiologic standpoint, that is the workings of his digestion, his intestine, lungs and kidneys, and so forth.

3rd. His mental characteristics—his talents, interests and fears, intelligence.

4th. How he meets illnesses—sore throat, boils, tooth or gum infections. His reaction to vaccine tests for diphtheria, tuberculosis and so forth.

I believe that you will agree that we do not all withstand illnesses alike. In fact you may vary from one time to another in your general physical condition.

My thought is that when we learn to know ourselves, from these standpoints, we can maintain our strong points, and strengthen those that are weak.

A QUESTION of HONOR by Ruth Cross

SYNOPSIS: Misunderstanding blights the budding romance of Scott Glenn and Anne Wilmot. They strike a responsive chord in each other's hearts in an afternoon at his cabin where Anne sought refuge from the storm. Glenn, however, concludes Anne's interest is feigned and his coldness mystifies her as she reports "on a determination to exact the tribute other men had accorded her beauty. Glenn's aloofness is explained in a torrent of kisses and angry words as he carries her home. Morse comes to meet Anne and his jealousy is aroused. Busy plotting trouble for Glenn and his irrigation dam, Morse had found little time to court Anne.

Chapter 16

A TRUCULENT VISITOR

STILL feeling the effects of her exhausting experience, Anne awoke at 11 o'clock the following morning. Had it not been for a disturbance outside her door she might have slept all day but the rumble of voices penetrated her sleepy consciousness.

Listening, somewhat reluctantly, Anne made out the high pitched French and broken English of her maid and old Jarvis' pompous tones. There was a third voice, a raucous, stubborn drawl, she did not place at once.

The last was speaking. "Still a sleepin,' Lord ha' mercy, you aint tellin' me as how no decent folks lies abed till this time a day!"

There was a brief altercation during which Anne recognized the voice of Sheb. "I dun got orders from the boss to give this here letter to Miss Wilmot an' nobuddy but her. Ef you all won't leave me go in there, I reckon I'll jes wait here till she comes out."

Anne rubbed her heavy eyes regretfully, sat up in bed, grimaced as she found her muscles stiff from her experiences with Glenn. "Delphine," she called.

"Oui, mademoiselle." Delphine came into the room and burst into voluble explanations and apologies in French.

"Tell him I can't see him," Anne cut in quietly and decisively, "and tell him that he is to take the letter or whatever it is back to the—person who wrote it."

As Delphine turned to deliver the message, Anne halted her. "Where is Mr. Morse?"

"In his bedroom—there." The girl pointed down the hall.

"Show the man into my dressing-room," she said, "and get me my things."

Ten minutes later Anne walked quietly into the room. She could not restrain a smile at the spectacle which the shaggy, hump-shouldered old man presented—poised in anguished comfort in an ethereal ivory and gold chair. At his side on the floor hunched Japheth.

Anne stood for a moment speculatively eyeing the prospector.

"You wanted to see me?" she finally asked.

Sheb started violently and dropped the letter he was holding between thumb and forefinger. Japheth leaped up and fairly hurled himself at Anne—muddy paws and all. Sheb started to the rescue but was too late. Three pats on the head, a dozen enjoling words and Anne made a new conquest while the dog's master stared bewilderingly. It was incomprehensible to him.

Anne was by nature and profession a man tamer but she realized as Sheb stared at her that she was entering on her hardest campaign of subjugation.

"Well," he observed at last glumly, "I knowed you was good lookin' —knowed in reason you'd hev' to be to get the boss goin' the way you hev'—but I never s'posed you was so all fired good to look at!"

There was begrudging admiration in the eyes of the old prospector, as he gazed upon the loveliness revealed before him. Anne was a really beautiful woman and knew the charm that is lent by a floating cloud of pink frosted over with gossamer webs of lace. Her bedroom was a perfect frame for the delectable picture.

Anne was enjoying the old man's discomfiture. She said nothing but reached down and stroked the ears of Japheth lying supplicatingly at her feet.

Presently the old prospector spoke:

"'Scuse me for axin, missy, but air you in the habit o' sleepin' till this time o day?"

"That depends," Anne said, smiling. "Sometimes I get up earlier—sometimes later——"

"Later——!" Sheb looked at her wonderingly. "I reckon, missy, it ain't never come to you as how up to our joint I roll out at daylight, come summer, come winter, an' the hoss, he's kin generally up not later'n 7. How'd you think you'd like that?"

"I really had never thought about it," Anne confessed, still smiling.

"Well, s'posen you think about it——" He looked about for fresh ammunition and indicated the luxurious little apartment with a sweep of one of his windmill arms: "An' we aint got none o' this here finery neither. Glenn an' me, we mostly take our bath in the lake. How do you think you'd like that, eh?"

"I really had not given that any thought, either," she admitted, stifling a yawn.

Sheb leaned forward—portentously. "Well, this is what I'm a comin' to—air you a almin' fer to hev' 'im or air you not?"

"Have whom?" Anne repeated politely.

The old man looked at her sharply. "I 'low you know who I'm a talkin' about," he observed laconically, "an' I jes' want to say furthermore that ef you keep on a runnin' arter 'im an' a insistin' on marryin' 'im, it'll be the everlastin' ruination o' one o' the ——"

"Insisting on marrying him!" Anne gasped, unintentionally aloud. Her cheeks outvied the room in colorfulness.

"I have not the slightest intention of marrying—anyone in whom you are interested. That was what you wanted to know, was it not?"

Sheb's childlike blue eyes peered shrewdly, still a little skeptically into hers. "Air you sartin about that?" he queried.

She nodded. "Absolutely."

"Shake on it then."

She put her hand into his. When she drew it away, the skin was smarting sharply from the vigorous contact with his rough old paw.

But Sheb looked tremendously relieved, almost happy. "Afore I'd see 'im hitched up fer keeps with one o' you all female critters," he added solemnly, "I'd most sooner see him in his grave!"

"Well, you needn't worry about me," Anne assured him cheerfully. "He's perfectly safe so far as I'm concerned—I believe I told you that before."

The old gold-hunter was still eyeing her a little doubtfully. "Well, then," he drawled, "jes you take a piece o' advice I give you onct before an' leave 'im be! I been a watchin' this here man an' female business a good many year, an' what I say is, ef a woman aint layin' fer to marry a man, why can't she leave 'im be?"

Again his listener's cheeks burned uncomfortably.

"Oh, I purty nigh forgot——" Sheb swooped down suddenly and picked up the square white envelope from the floor where it had been dropped during Japheth's initial rush for Anne. "He said as how I was to give you this and wait for an answer. An' wait I was bound an' determined I would!"

Anne turned the missive over in her fingers—without glancing at it—and then handed it back to him with a suspicion of a malicious sparkle in her eyes. "Just to show you that I mean what I said a while ago in good faith," she said, "I'm not even going to read this, and—so, you see, there isn't any answer."

"Not a goin' to read it," he gazed at her dumfoundedly, "who ever learn tell o' not readin' a——?"

She shook her head decisively. "You just take it back to him, and—tell him what you have told me!" The malicious sprites sparkled more brightly in her eyes.

She rose and moved, almost imperceptibly, towards the door, a suggestion which her caller obeyed without having the least idea that he was doing so. Japheth also rose—reluctantly—stretched himself in leisurely fashion and followed. At the threshold, Anne put out her hand to Sheb, who took it—this time in gingerly fashion.

"There's no reason after all why we shouldn't be friends, is there?" she said persuasively, lifting her face to his.

He dropped her hand as if it had turned suddenly into a live coal and backed precipitately through the door. "Friends?" he exploded, "me an' you——! No; female critters are man's nat'ral born enemies. From the cradle to the grave, we've got to be on our guard agin 'em—— Of course, I ain't meanin' nuthin personal to you, missy. I reckon it aint yore fault you're born that way—only you happened to be born a heap more that a way than most. Good mornin'."

Conductor Scored

On a rainy day a lady in a sable coat got on a Madison avenue street car. "I don't suppose I've ridden on a street car in two years," she said to the conductor, a gloomy fellow, as she gave him her fare. "I ride in my own car," she explained. The conductor rang up the fare. "You don't know how we missed you," he said.—The New Yorker.

ROMANCE AND REALITY
In the morning, O my darling,
When the furnace fire is low,
When the walks await a shovel,
Deep in softly falling snow,
Will you then draw up the covers,
Making a pathetic plea
For just one more nap, and think it
Best to leave this work to me?

"I wont," is as vital to success as "I will."

A good many Kingston school girls earn their spending money by staying with children of parents who go out for the evening.

Overheard at a bridge party recently:

"We really must be going."

"Can't you stay just a little longer?"

"Oh no—Sam must take the girl home yet."

"I didn't know you had any children."

"We haven't. We get a girl to stay with Whoopee, our little bulldog."

Syracuse (AP).—Women prisoners at the Onondago county penitentiary may smoke if they wish, under an amendment to the penitentiary regulations adopted by the board of supervisors.

Rochester (AP).—An Iroquois canoe, made of a single sheet of elm bark and said to be a good sample of the type of canoe used by the six nations before the advent of the paleface, has been placed on exhibition at the Rochester municipal museum. The canoe is said to be the only one left of those actually made by the Iroquois who ceased making them early in the nineteenth century.

Elizabethtown (AP).—A small boy living in Streetroad, near here is alive today because he doesn't like taking medicine. His 81-year-old grandfather, nearly blind, attempted to give the child bichlorido of mercury tablets, mistaking them for cold tablets. The boy refused to take them and the grandfather, to encourage him, swallowed one of the tablets and became seriously ill. Physicians said one tablet would have killed the boy.

Rochester (AP).—Value of the sight of one eye has been fixed at $60,000 by parents of Gerald LeSchander, 14-year-old schoolboy who lost the sight of his eye when it was penetrated by a tack while he was putting up a Christmas tree at a local school. The boy and his mother are suing the city for that amount, alleging negligence on the part of teachers in failing to send the boy to the school nurse for treatment.

Syracuse (AP).—Problems of anthracite coal merchandising will be discussed by leaders in that branch of the industry at the annual group meeting of the New York State Coal Merchants Association in this city, February 13.

Rochester (AP).—The annual meeting of the women's section of the Empire State Gas and Electric Association will be held in this city today and tomorrow. Among the speakers will be Dr. Clinton Wunder, of the firm of Ward, Wells, and Dreshman of New York City. It will be Dr. Wunder's first public appearance here since he resigned as pastor of the Baptist Temple a year ago.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

A YEAR OF RECORD PROGRESS IN TELEPHONE SERVICE

IMPORTANT chapters of telephone history are written every year in the State of New York, but the record of the year just closed takes precedence in the progress made in this great public service.

More than $100,000,000 invested in 1929 for telephone plant and equipment suggests the enormous expansion and unceasing improvements necessary to anticipate the growing requirements of this State.

Among the accomplishments of the year are the following:

New Buildings: 16 completed, 8 started; 4 enlarged, additions begun on 6 others.

Additions to Wire System: 1,252,000 miles of wire added; 97% of the 13,000,000 miles of wiring is now in storm-proof lead-covered cable—83% is below ground.

New Telephones: Nearly 166,000 added, each increasing the value of the service available to the 2,630,000 telephones now served by this company.

More Public Telephones: 5,242 added at numerous points convenient to the public, making a total of 74,535 now in service.

Increased Telephone Traffic: The Company handled an average daily total of 12,461,487 calls originating in its territory—1,064,000 more than last year.

New Business Offices: Increased by 77—placing business office service within easier access of many thousands of customers.

Additional Employees: Employees increased by nearly 6,000 to total of approximately 65,000, the largest number employed by any single concern in the company's territory.

The new year just begun presents an even larger task than that of 1929, or of any previous year in this State, in the magnitude of the construction and improvement program necessary to assure adequate service. The estimated expenditures for this purpose in 1930 total $120,000,000. As this work goes forward, continued effort will be devoted to promote increasing convenience, comfort and dependability of service for every telephone user.

EYE FOR AN EYE; TOOTH FOR TOOTH

(©by D. J. Walsh.)

JOYCE turned the corner into the avenue at about 28 miles an hour and zoomed up the hill toward the traffic station, her mind blurred and foggy with the pain in a decayed, aching wisdom tooth, her only thought to get to the dentist as quickly as possible and end the tormenting agony. She looked up at the lights, jammed on her brakes and slid ten feet almost to the outstretched hand of the glaring mountain of outraged law, and his bawl of rage and sarcasm was the last straw. Joyce dissolved into sheer tears of agony and despair. She couldn't, simply could not endure ten minutes more of this nightmarish toothache! Smuciness, freshness, madness, sulkiness, plain out and out acting Bruce Robbins could meet and handle, but a bundle of rusty-haired, adorable loveliness crying real honest tears was a horse of another color, and the worthy denizen of the law lifted back his snappy looking cap and, scratching his head perplexedly, inspected the weeping girl. She lifted tear-drenched eyes to meet his and her left hand scrubbed childishly at her cheek, raising a faint purple welt, as he found speech and inquired politely enough for a New York traffic officer just where she was going in such a hurry—she wasn't old enough to have a dying mother, he added with elaborate sarcasm.

"I bet you never had a toothache that was driving you cross-eyed!" she wailed, and then he noticed again the faint purple splotch on her jaw and took stock of the still scrubbing fist, and with surprising gentleness he said: "Scoot along, now, child—and I hope it doesn't hurt much!" Not so much as a scolding—nor a ticket—nor any racket whatever; just that simple admonition!

"It won't, much longer!" she said grimly, and skidded around his station on three wheels and was off across town to the dentist's in less time than it takes to write it.

The memory of the lovely girl stuck in Bruce's mind all the rest of his remaining half-hour of duty and throughout his tedious journey across town to his brother's office, where he was having some work done on some defective fillings. He wondered if she had had her tooth fixed and what she was doing now and if it hurt much, and what a plucky little nut she was to stand such a horrible nightmare as toothache and not yell and cuss at everybody and anybody!

"That you, Bruce?" called Doctor Robbins from his working room.

"Yeah, that filling's punk, Bert; she's gottn come out!"

"I think we can save it," counseled his brother, and he looked at his lovely patient in the chair, wondering if he had hurt her to cause her to jump so, little guessing that she was thinking gratefully that it simply must be he; nobody else she had ever known had quite the quality of voice of that wonderfully decent traffic cop at Fifty-ninth street and Broadway.

"I think you cannot!" replied the unseen speaker grimly; "it's coming out just as soon as you can lie into it!"

"Nonsense; we all must save our teeth if possible!" retorted the dentist as he carefully scraped Joyce's gum for any remaining root or adhesion.

"Great hat, Bert! I darned near bawled out the one and only girl today just because of that darned tooth! Think I want to get to be a crabby old jaw-cracker just because of a tooth or so?"

"Didn't know you had a girl, Bruce," answered Doctor Robbins, wondering why Miss Palmerson paled so; he was sure he wasn't hurting her.

"She wasn't my girl exactly; that is, I don't know her name or anything about her, you see," went on the reminiscent, gentle voice in the outer room, "but if ever I met the girl of my dreams, she's the girl!"

"Oh, come, Bruce; the heat's getting you! Falling in love with a girl you don't know," joshed Doctor Robbins as he continued his work on the quiet, still very pale Miss Palmerson.

"Well, I've always said that a dentist was pretty cold-blooded," retorted Bruce, by way of avenging the slur on his intelligence.

"Not to mention traffic cops," came back the put answer of the smiling Doctor Robbins as he unclasped the towel from around Joyce's neck and moved the chair down and forward to allow her to step out.

Face to face, Bruce stood, staring with horrified eyes at the "girl of his dreams" as she stood quietly in the doorway a moment looking at him before getting into her wraps. He had raved like a silly ass, and she had heard it all! It was just his luck! Traffic cop for ten years and never once seeing a girl who could make him look twice, and now, after seeing her, to go and spoil all his chances like this! And the grimness with which he marched in to have the offending tooth removed was significant of the bleak, grim feeling in his heart as the door closed ever so softly, and he realized that there had been faint laughter in her lovely violet eyes as she shot a glance at him.

Before he left the chair Bert had removed three teeth and started work on saving a fourth, and Bruce staggered slightly as he came into the bright sunshine after the darkness of the elevator, conscious that he had not eaten since noon, and that only a light lunch, due to the trouble some teeth. He wished he'd brought enough with him to pay for a taxi; he felt little like walking to the sub and being banged about via that route homeward, when a voice hailed him.

"I'm going your way. Will you ride, Mr. Robbins?" and he swung sharply about to face the girl of the adventure, too amazed to even make a suitable reply as he climbed into her smart sedan.

"Do you live alone, Mr. Robbins?" she asked solicitously as they came to a halt, several blocks farther east than her own residence.

"Yeh; Bert's married. I'll be all right—just a bit dizzy from hunger and that stuff he gives us to haul 'em out with!"

"I'll send you up a tray in a jiffy—what's the number?" she answered.

"Three sixty-five—but I can't let you trouble so!"

"Nothing at all. You were decent to me."

And the tray she ordered sent up from the restaurant was but the beginning of a friendship that was destined to ripen into something much finer as the weeks went on.

QUESTION!
SHOULD NELLIE CHERRY SACRIFICE HERSELF BY MARRYING HER SWEETHEART, DICK WILEY, NOW THAT HE IS CRIPPLED FOR LIFE
ANSWER!
WHAT SOME OF OUR READERS THINK.
1-16
Hurry up and let Nellie marry Dick. Else the priests worrying over it already.
Let 'em marry what looks more befitting than a lady pushing a man around in a wheel-chair? Women were made to serve us mortals anyway—
Nellie Cherry I think it would be unfair to Dick if you deserted him now.
Dear Nell: If you love Dick marry him regardless of any hardship it may work on your father. Would he let you stand in the way of any pleasure he would not?
Mr. Beck. When it comes to arousing people to think deeply you can't beat a real problem in life such as Nellie is facing. Keep up the good work. I'm for her marrying Dick.
Nellie: All that rot about you marrying Dick is nauseating. A woman gets the worst of it marrying a cripple man, let alone one who is crippled.

Customs Service agents in foreign lands keep their home officials advised of purchases of jewels and other dutiable articles which may reach our shores. All manner of men and women will attempt smuggling so, as tips come in, the Port Collector warns his men to be all eyes and ears. In New York, one day in June, 1929, after all passengers had left the S. S. Penniland, just in from Antwerp, a Customs Guard loitered on the dock unwilling to give up a clue that a smuggling plot was being carried out somehow by someone arriving on the vessel. A Belgian sailor sauntering off the ship, quickened his stride when passing. The watchful Guard had a "hunch"! Swinging into step with the seaman, the Guard asked a few pointed questions. The sailor answered with some show of nervousness. His pace quickened.

He grew silent and sullen. The Customs man insisted on answers, and when the sailor suddenly attempted escape the Guard seized him. A deft "frisking" followed. From one pocket came a torn photograph; from another, an odd, long-stemmed pipe and a pouch of tobacco—and as the tobacco was poured out there rolled forth a glittering stream of diamonds. Taken before the U. S. District Attorney, the Belgian would not talk. The Attorney pondered over the torn picture and the queer pipe. Surely this man was in the employ of crafty criminals. How were they to be discovered? Unexpectedly, he shot a startling statement at the seaman. The man's eyes popped wide in amazement. (Continued).

Mongoose Not Immune to Poison of Snakes

Perhaps you have seen the portrayal of a fight between a mongoose and a cobra at a moving-picture theater, sometime. The mongoose is the cobra's deadly enemy, and this battle to the death between mammal and serpent is an absorbing photographic study. The contest between mongoose and cobra has been on the screen as a short subject by itself, and also as a part of a talking picture.

The full name of the cobra is "cobra de capello," which is Portuguese for "serpent of the hood." As Webster's New International dictionary points out, this snake is so named because of its power to expand "the skin of the neck into a broad hood—when suddenly excited or angered—by a movement of the ribs." The cobra dilates this hood when ready to fight. A native of Asia, and particularly common in India, the cobra is hated and feared as a fatally venomous reptile. Though sometimes subdued by snake charmers, the cobra causes as many as 5,000 deaths annually from its bite in India alone.

The mongoose and its name are both Indian in origin. The name of the animal is "mungos" in Tamil, one of the oldest of the Indian languages. It, of course, in no way related to a goose! Though the animal has acquired the reputation of being immune to snake venom, because it so fearlessly attacks poisonous serpents, the mongoose has no such immunity. If the snake should bite the mongoose, it would probably be the end of the little animal. The mongoose succeeds in attacking and killing such snakes as the cobra because of its remarkably quick sight and its lightning agility. It dodges the snake's thrusts and launches its attack with a speed almost invisible to the human eye.

In the animal kingdom, the mongoose is classified with the civets, all of which are long-bodied, short-legged mammals.

Long in Mayor's Chair

William M. Reed, seventy-nine, mayor of Beach City, Ohio, may be the oldest active mayor in the state. He has served three times as chief executive of the city, and it is said that he is not going to be allowed to retire. In fact, he has never sought office, but the people have come to him. From 1890 to 1894 he served as mayor of Massillon, Ohio. Then, when he moved to Beach City, he announced he did not want the office of mayor. However, that made no difference. The voters merely wrote his name on the ballots and he was elected. It is said that when he was mayor of Massillon he made so much money for the city by careful management there was enough to run the city for six months after his term expired.—Indianapolis News.

Corn Fertilizer

For corn on well drained black prairie loam soils use superphosphate in the hill or drill at rates of from 90 to 100 pounds per acre where hill dropped, or up to 200 pounds per acre where drilled. The higher colored upland soils need a mixed fertilizer such as the 4-16-4, since it starts the crop off a little more quickly in the spring when the soil is cold. This mixture should be applied at rates of from 75 to 100 pounds per acre where hill dropped.

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

Village politics and shrewd scheming in town meeting will figure in the Seconyland Sketch Tuesday evening when "The Hog Reeve", an original radio drama, is broadcast at 7:30 through the usual northeastern network of NBC stations.

Prince Eugene, gallant soldier, brilliant leader of men, idol of the court and of the people of Vienna and in high favor with the Emperor of Austria, after leading his armies to a glorious victory over the Turks faces downfall and disgrace as the result of a treacherous plot inspired by jealousy, in the Heroes of the World Program sponsored by Durant Motors and presented at 7 p. m., January 19, by the National Broadcasting Company over WEAF and a network of 38 affiliated stations.

When King George of England convenes the Five Power Naval Conference in London on January 21 at 11 o'clock Greenwich time, the network of the Columbia Broadcasting System will carry, throughout the United States and Canada, his epochal speech. The British Broadcasting Company's lines will transmit the King's speech to coastal short wave stations in England, whence it will be carried over short wave lengths to the Atlantic coast of the United States relayed by American Telephone and Telegraph lines to WABC, key station of the Columbia System in New York and thence to the nation-wide network. King George's address, because of the time difference between London and New York, will be broadcast at 6 a. m. It is believed that despite the early hours of reception in the United States, a great radio audience will listen in on the morning of the 21st. The Columbia audiences, each week on Thursday at 8:15 to 8:30 p. m. E. S. T., will hear the voice of Frederic William Wile from London, reporting the happenings at the Naval conference.

Crude Railroading

In New York city, Baltimore and Philadelphia, in the early days of steam railroads, the cars were drawn through the cities by horses. In the outskirts the engines were taken off, strong horses attached and cars pulled slowly through the cities. Probably this method was followed in other centers of population.

The Reason

The reason women pay to see the fat woman at the circus is that they want to see somebody who is in worse fix than they are.

Roast Beef has finer flavor when seasoned before cooking with GULDEN'S Mustard

It pays to pay more for this finer flour!

It has been proved to the satisfaction of millions of thrifty, money-saving house-wives that it's cheaper to pay a little more for flour and get Pillsbury's Best. Cheaper in cold hard cash—not merely in time and trouble saved. In other words, no matter what you pay for Pillsbury's Best, you get the most economical flour you can buy. Ask the women who use it and will use nothing else—they'll tell you these things:

(1) Pillsbury's Best Flour will never cause a baking failure—and baking failures cost too much money.

(2) Pillsbury's Best is an unusually rich flour. It yields more foods per bag, makes foods stay fresh longer, gives a finer flavor to everything you bake.

(3) Pillsbury's Best is a true all-purpose flour. You can use it successfully for all your baking—bread, biscuits, cakes and pastry.

Remember Pillsbury's Best—the most economical and satisfactory flour you can buy at any price. All good grocers have it—ask for it by name.

Prohibition's Tenth Anniversary Finds Enforcement Chief Issue

By L. A. BROPHY,
((AP) Feature Service Writer.)

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP).—Ten years ago today the practice of resting a crooked arm on a polished bar became an unconstitutional gesture.

The eighteenth amendment went into effect at midnight January 16, 1920, after Nebraska had ratified it as the thirty-sixth state. Adding prohibition to the basic law, however, made little difference then, as the country had been under a wartime ban on liquor since the preceding July.

Prohibition, stretching its limbs as a 10-year-old, finds itself being cuffed about strenuously, but with enforcement, rather than drinking, the target for controversy.

Many profess to see that 1930 will be as critical a year for the "great experiment" as any in its existence.

Outstanding in developments that followed rapidly as 1929 waned were:

The charge, taken directly to the White House by Senator Borah of Idaho, that governmental enforcement personnel is not efficient.

The sweeping study of dry law application by President Hoover's commission on law enforcement.

Certainty that prohibition will be a major legislative topic before Congress this year.

A possible supreme court ruling on the move to make a liquor purchaser equally guilty with the seller.

Statement by Read Admiral Frederick C. Billard, commandant of the coast guard, that "amiable gestures" will not be used in seeking to prevent liquor smuggling.

Organized forces, for and against prohibition, marshalled their resources for continued battle.

On its tenth anniversary, Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, in a statement said that national prohibition reminded him of a "squirrel in a revolving cage".

"The little fellow makes a great show to do something," he said. "He runs at a furious pace until he is worn out, subsides long enough to catch his breath and then starts off again, more determined than ever.... And the ordinary observer, outside the cage, finds himself reflecting that not all motion is progress."

On the other side, Dr. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, said "Increasing sentiment for national sobriety marks the first decade of constitutional prohibition.

"This sentiment has been shown in repeated elections," he added. "A changing social attitude is being manifest. * * * To the economic progress of the United States prohibition has undeniably contributed."

Henry H. Curran, opposed to the prohibition amendment, and Dr. F. Scott McBride, of the Anti-Saloon League, are marshalling their forces anew as prohibition ends its first decade January 16. Senator William E. Borah is a pivotal figure in the controversy over enforcement as the Hoover commission headed by George W. Wickersham studies day law application.

GOITRE NOT A DISEASE

Milwaukee Doctor Makes Remarkable Discovery.

Milwaukee, Wis.—It has been brought to light by scientific research that goitre is not a disease and is not to be treated as such. Dr. A. A. Rock, Dept. F16, Box 737, Milwaukee, Wis., a prominent goitre specialist for over 24 years, has perfected a different method of treatment for his patients that has proved remarkably successful. This same method is now being used for a home treatment of goitre cases all over the country with astonishing results. The Doctor states that goitre is a condition which grows worse with neglect and recommends immediate attention no matter how small the growth may appear. He strongly opposes needless operations. Dr. Rock is the author of a book that tells in a simple way about treating goitre at home. He has published this book at his own expense and will send a copy free to anyone interested. Write him today.—Adv.

END ECZEMA TORTURES FOREVER

No Need to Suffer Another Day

There is one simple yet inexpensive way to stop the itching and torture of Eczema instantly, and that is to apply Moone's Emerald Oil night and morning and people who suffer from any embarrassing or disfiguring skin trouble would be wise to banish it before it reaches a more or less chronic stage.

Ask Mahen & Walker or any first-class druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full-strength) and refuse to accept anything in its place. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two ounces last a long time, and furthermore, if this wonderful discovery does not give you complete satisfaction you can have your money refunded.

Special note: People who want to reduce swollen or varicose veins should get a bottle of Emerald Oil at once. By applying night and morning as directed they will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

Feels Young Again Enjoys Hard Work

Millions of men and women all over the world take Kruschen Salts daily—not because they are really sick, mind you—but because they know the little daily dose of Kruschen keeps them always fit, energetic and free from fat, and also keeps the system free from over acidity.

HAVE YOU ACCEPTED THIS OPPORTUNITY TO GET WELL, BE STRONG AND HAPPY?

Thousands of Men and Women in Kingston Who Have Overcome Illness with NU-ERB Are Responsible for the Intense Interest in This Great Herbal Remedy.

NU-ERB Relieves Constipation, Gastritis, Dizzy Spells, Biliousness, Rheumatism, Rouses a Lazy Liver, Strengthens the Kidneys, Quiets the Nerves and Banishes That Tired, Worn-Out Feeling.

The remarkable accomplishments of Dr. French's Nu-Erb in this city and vicinity, during the past two years, is marked with scores upon scores of triumphs over sickness and suffering for those who have used it. Unparalleled records for medicine have been established by Nu-Erb. Never before has any medicine been the subject of so much local comment. The ever growing demand has passed all expectations. Thousands of former sufferers of stomach, kidney, liver and bowel troubles, rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness, tell of splendid and lasting relief. Hundreds of signed statements have been received from every section of this district testifying to the merits and establishing the truth of claims made for Nu-Erb. Statements of grateful persons who realize that the value of health should and must be placed before everything else. Persons who have recommended, yes, urged their friends and neighbors to try Nu-Erb so that they, too, may know the joy and happiness of glowing health, energy and vigor, free from the bonds of sickness, pain and suffering.

Many pages could be filled with seemingly unbelievable stories of the accomplishments of this medicine, yet all of them would be true. Stories that would be endorsed by reliable and trustworthy local people—people whom you may know personally, and respect. These persons will tell you that Nu-Erb has done more for them than they had ever dared hope. What better evidence, what more proof can be offered that this simple herbal, yet highly effective medicine is worthy of your confidence? That if given a test should also show you the joy of living when you are relieved from the torturing pain of indigestion, gas crowded stomach, backache, weakened kidneys, rheumatism, neuritis, dizzy spells, biliousness, headaches, nervousness, sleeplessness and tired, wornout feelings.

Just remember that persons who have suffered from such ailments tell in signed statements, that it has accomplished wonders for them and that is what we offer as evidence of what it should do for you. A short trial will likely fully convince you.

Three Years Of Suffering Ended

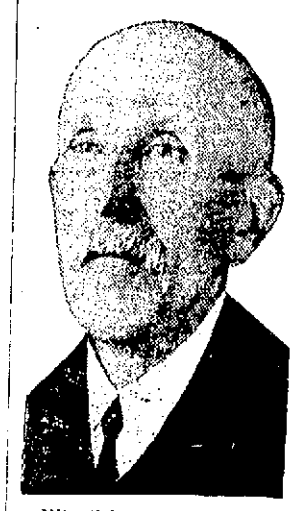
MRS. M. CLARE.

"Thanks to Dr. French's Nu-Erb, my three years of suffering are over," said Mrs. M. Clare, 45 Murray St., Kingston, N. Y., in an interview with the Nu-Erb man at McBride Drug Store, where he is daily introducing and explaining this medicine to scores of local men and women.

"Before using this medicine, I suffered untold miseries with indigestion and a disordered stomach. Large quantities of gas formed in my stomach after meals causing hours of distress and pain. My kidneys were in a weakened condition. I suffered from backache and I was a chronic victim to constipation.

"The Nu-Erb has helped me in so many ways that I feel like telling everybody about this medicine. It has relieved the troubles with my stomach, strengthened my kidneys, the pains have left my back and I am no longer troubled with constipation. As a result of this new feeling of health, I sleep soundly at night, have a splendid appetite and I am feeling better in every way than I have for several years."

Is Grateful To Those, Who Told Him Of NU-ERB



MR. CLARENCE BENTON.

"I feel that I owe a debt of gratitude to those who first told me about the Nu-Erb, and it is only natural that I should pass the word along so that others who suffer as I did, may know of it and use this wonderful medicine," said Mr. Clarence Benton, Ulster Park, N. Y. (Near Kingston).

"For more than a year, my kidneys have been in a very weakened condition, my back ached continually and I was disturbed several times each night. As a result I slept poorly and awakened feeling tired and worn out. My liver seemed to be in a sluggish condition, for I was subject to dizzy spells and floating spots seemed to appear before my eyes.

"Friends of mine who had used the Nu-Erb recommended that I give it a trial and it only took a very short treatment of this medicine to give me splendid relief. My kidneys are now apparently in better shape than they have been for over a year. The pains have left my back and most nights I sleep right thorugh without being disturbed. The dizzy spells and spots before my eyes have disappeared. I have a splendid appetite and generally, I am feeling better than I have for a long time.

Quickly Relieved My Rheumatism After Two Years

MR. EDWARD BISHOP

Differing from many so-called rheumatic remedies, Dr. French's Nu-Erb goes about its work in a perfectly natural way, cleansing the system of impurities, eliminating acids and poisonous waste matter. This medicine has overcome cases of rheumatism and neuritis in many instances where everything else had failed, for example take the splendid experience of Mr. Edward Bishop, Port Ewen, N.Y., who is engineer of the steamer Hercules.

"I was troubled with a severe case of rheumatism for more than two years, During that time I was never free from agonizing pains through my limbs, joints and muscles that would become stiff, sore and swollen and at times I could hardly raise my arm above my head. My kidneys were in a weakened condition, I suffered from backache and I was forced to arise many times each night. I was troubled with constipation and my entire system was generally rundown.

"After trying everything else, I have at last found a medicine that will actually give relief. Dr. French's Nu-Erb has put an end to those aches and pains for the first time. I can now move about freely and the stiffness and swelling have all disappeared. The pains have left my back, my kidneys are apparently in first rate condition and my bowels are acting regularly every day. I am also feleing much stronger and have more energy than I have had for several years."

NERVOUS

SPOTS before your eyes? Dizzy? Irritable? These symptoms are usually caused by a deranged digestive system which affects the delicate nerve centers of the stomach. They can quickly be relieved by this wonderful medicine, made entirely of roots and herbs, which tones up the entire digestive system and strengthens the nerve centers. Start to be healthy today, with a bottle of

DR. FRENCH'S NU-ERB

RHEUMATIC

IF you suffer the agonies of rheumatism, if every change of weather is foretold by painful joints, you may blame sluggish kidneys, which are failing in their duty of throwing off excess uric acid. Even in the most severe cases of rheumatism, this great, new herbal medicine has brought wonderful relief to thousands of sufferers, by restoring their kidneys to full activity, in an easy, natural way.

DR. FRENCH'S NU-ERB

HEADACHES

HEADACHES are generally considered more annoying than dangerous. Yet, repeated headaches are a warning that your stomach, through its delicate nerve system, may affect other organs of the body and cause serious ailments. Don't just endure a headache. Relieve it quickly with this new medicine, made entirely from pure roots and herbs.

DR. FRENCH'S NU-ERB

SLEEP WELL

DID you sleep well last night or did your nerves bother you? The great majority of cases of sleeplessness, insomnia or restlessness can be relieved with this great natural medicine. It not only strengthens and steadies the nerves, but it will tone up the most disordered digestive system, which is so often a cause of sleeplessness. Try it!

APPEAL FOR AID ON BEHALF OF RUSSIAN REFUGEES.

The Walther League of the Missouri Synod have sent out an appeal for aid for Lutherans who have been forced to flee to Canada to escape the atheist rule now in existence in Russia. These Lutherans fled from their home country to come to a land of religious liberty and to a place where they could make a new start. The atheist rule is such that these people could not leave the country with any possessions but the clothes which they were wearing. The Young People's Society of the Livingston Street Lutheran Church have answered this appeal by setting aside February 15, for the collection of old clothes for which people have no more use. February 16, has also been set aside as relief day and a collection will be taken at the door of the church on this date. If there are any persons who would wish to contribute to this worthy cause, either by money or clothes which they have discarded, they ar asked to communicate with the Rev. E. L. Witte, Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church, 22 Livingston street. Tel. 222-J.

CREEK LOCKS.

Creek Locks, Jan. 15.—All are glad to hear that Mrs. David Mowle, who has been ill for a long time, is getting along nicely.

Mrs. Jacob Weimar called on Mr. and Mrs. Sigmund Shulhof on Monday afternoon and on Mrs. Alonzo Sagar on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kosteckl and Mrs. William Engleman spent a pleasant evening at the "Idle Hour" on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Julius Engleken of Bloomington was a caller in this place on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Elizabeth Smith of New York spent a few days with her daughter, Mrs. E. White, and her grandchildren, and on Tuesday she spent a very pleasant afternoon with Mrs. John Hennessy. There was a musical radio program on and the hostess served tea and dainty sandwiches.

The Parent-Teachers' Association held its meeting on Thursday afternoon at the school house. After the minutes were read and the business was transacted a social hour was spent. The hostesses, Mrs. Winnie Dugan and Mrs. Carl Leim, served coffee, whipped cream, pineapple, homemade layer cake and, oh, boy, biscuits like mother used to bake. They just melted in your mouth. The regular meeting will be held on the last Wednesday of the month, January 29, at 3:15 p. m., at the school house. All members and those interested are invited to attend. The following members were present: Mrs. Fred Randagger, Mrs. King, Mrs. Neal Hotaling and Miss Katherine O'Connor of Bloomington; Mrs. Winnie Dugan, Mrs. Edwin LeFever, Mrs. Jacob Weimar and Mrs. Carl Leim of Creek Locks.

Last week it was spring weather, then rain and hail, and on Saturday morning the thermometers were down to four above zero.

Edwin Hoffman of Poughkeepsie called on the Leim family Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hermance of Rosendale Heights spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. D. Duvall, and daughter, Miss Betty Cook.

Mrs. James Lynch of Maple Hill spent Thursday with her sister, Mrs. Elizabeth White. Mrs. White had been living in Melrose, Mass., for some time before she moved to this place and the sisters had not seen each other for quite a while. They talked over old times and laughed heartily over bygone childish pranks.

Mrs. Lynch called on Mrs. Dinah Duvall and Mrs. John Hennessy before she returned home.

Word has been received from New York city that Mrs. Ella Hahn has been quite ill.

Mrs. George Sagar was a welcome visitor at Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Weimar's on Tuesday evening.

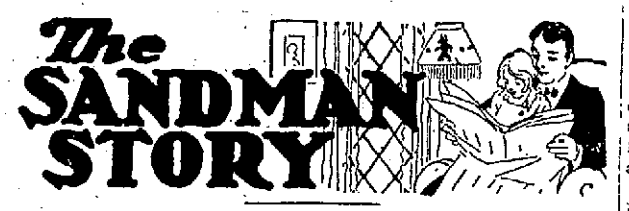
The SANDMAN STORY



NEWS IN NATURELAND

BILLIE BROWNIE sat down and commenced to read aloud the latest copy of the Natureland News.

It was the paper of Natureland, and Billie Brownie loved to read it aloud to the Fairies and the Elves, and the other Brownies, and the Gnomes.

They all enjoyed hearing it, too.

"Weather will be different at different times," he read. "Some days it will be cold, other days it will be warm, but on the whole the weather report is satisfactory.

"The weather will have variety and interest for all at one time or another.

"And now," Billie Brownie said, "I must read the 'Personal Items.'

"Mr. Robin is expecting to leave the South before long. He has had a delightful autumn and early winter and has met many old friends.

"He Is Also Known as Mr. Groundhog, He States."

"Mr. Gray Squirrel had a banquet last night of nuts which he had put under the snow last fall. It was a splendid banquet. Covers were set for many, and a good time was had by all.

"The animals in the zoo are eating a great deal during the cold weather and find their appetites excellent. They have a good cook, but they ask their friends in other zoos not to call him away. They would like to keep him.

"The Opossums are still up to their own tricks and will not change until they find others which are very much better.

"Up to now they think their own tricks are very clever, particularly the one about pretending not to be alive when an enemy comes near, or else pretending to be sound asleep.

"Mr. Woodchuck has not decided whether he will see his shadow or not when he peeps forth from his sleeping quarters in the near future.

"He says all the people like to take his photograph then and to write about him in the newspapers.

"He is also known as Mr. Groundhog, he states.

"Mr. Groundhog's cousin, residing in the Small Mammal House, the Zoo, has a new friend. His new friend is a dear little honey bear from South America. Mr. Groundhog is very friendly with his keeper and is allowed, as they say, 'the run of the place.'

"Mr. Horace Country-side Woodchuck is dreaming sweet dreams of the fun they had at Woodchuck Park last summer.

"There were many of them in a colony, and they had their holes in the nearby big fields. Only a few people drove along these country roads, and the woodchucks had things pretty much to themselves.

"They used to come up and sit about their homes and enjoy the beautiful sunshine.

"Sometimes people passing would admire them. They only met friends and no enemies, which was very delightful.

"Their winter dreams are now of the sweetest.

"King Snow and the Icicle Girls and Old Man Winter and Madame Snow and Prince Sleet have all sent word that they are going to remain around a little longer, anyway.

"What is meant by that 'anyway' we can't quite tell.

"The Snow Jewelers wish to run an advertisement about their Snow Crystal Jewels. They say they have the finest collection ever brought together, and that the prices are reasonable and the jewels exquisite.

"Their advertisement is to be found on the left hand side of this paper."

Billie Brownie showed it to every one.

Then he continued reading:

"The Donkey family held a braying contest the other day. Each hehawed so well that all were specially deserving of the prize, but no one received it, because no one was better than the other.

"Mean Mr. Fly rubbed his wings with his two hind legs and went a-calling the other day.

"No one wanted to see him, but that did not bother Mr. Fly. Nor will he mind what we say about him in our valuable paper.

"His manners are as bad as ever. And he was not a welcome visitor.

"Everyone had hoped that there would be no flies for a long time. But somehow or other, this Mr. Fly found his way to a farm house on a warm day in quite a warm place. He said he had other friends on the way."

And Billie Brownie folded up the paper.

KINGSTON PEOPLE AT CHARITIES AID DINNER

Among those from Kingston who will be present at the annual dinner of the State Charities Aid Association to be held at the Biltmore Hotel, New York city, Friday evening, January 17, will be:

Theodore Brink, Miss Ida Brink, Miss Florence Cordts, Mrs. John N. Cordts, Dr. Raymond S. Crispell, Mary C. Doremus, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Fessenden, Mrs. George S. Nobles, and Mrs. Thomas J. Hickey.

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt will be the principal speaker at the dinner. He will discuss the state's welfare program in an address which will be broadcast over Station WOR. The broadcast will begin at 9:45 p. m. and will continue until 10:30 p. m. Homer Folks, secretary of the association, and Miss Grace Abbott, chief, Federal Children's Bureau, will also speak.

The dinner is held in connection with the 58th annual meeting of the association, which was founded in 1872 by the late Louisa Lee Schuyler, great-granddaughter of Alexander Hamilton. The association is unique among welfare associations in its organization which consists of a Central Association in New York city and branch committees in all the counties of the state. In Ulster county the association has organized needy children, tuberculosis and public health and visiting public institutions committees.

In a Nutshell

You cannot prevent the birds of sadness from flying over your head but you may prevent them from stopping to make their nests there.

ISOLATED WELSH ISLANDERS GET CHRISTMAS PACKAGES.

Pwllheli, Carnarvonshire, Wales, Jan. 16 (AP).—Forty-three inhabitants of Bardsey Isle, near here, have tobacco and fresh meat and yeast for their bread today after five weeks of isolation due to the storms which have swept Britain's coast.

A lifeboat putting out from Pwllheli yesterday finally succeeded in reaching the island with foodstuffs and Christmas parcels. The inhabitants rushed to the beach to greet the visitors from the mainland. They first asked for tobacco and for what else had been brought.

They said the last meat on the island was consumed several days ago although they still had dried fish, caught before the storms came. They were without yeast with which to leaven bread.

There had been some anxiety here for the safety of the folks on the little island when they failed to respond to rocket signals or other attempts to communicate with them.

Bardsey Island is one of the least known parts of the British Isles. It has an area of less than 500 acres and is very thinly populated. The number of inhabitants is decreasing from year to year. It is ruled by an elected "king" who has about the same functions as an old-time patriarch.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

WHITE HORSES

IN NEW ENGLAND they say, "Wish on the first white horse you see after the New Year and you will get your wish, "or "Say white horse seven times every time you see one and you will receive a present." But in Canada they say that if you watch a span of white horses out of sight you will die within the year; and in another section it is considered bad luck for a bridal couple to ride behind a pair of white horses.

In the superstition with regard to a span of white horses we have an echo of the mythological Legend of Hippolytus who was killed when his span of white horses ran away with him upon the Troezen shore and who, with Diana, was afterwards worshipped at Nemi where white horses were sacrificed to him. The fate of Hippolytus sufficiently explained the idea of bad luck attaching to a span of white horses.

On the other hand the idea of good luck attaching to a white horse arises from the fact that such an animal was considered a propitiatory offering calculated to obtain the favor of the gods and as such they are annually sacrificed in many places in the heathen world.

There is a popular belief that when you see a white horse you will soon see a red-headed girl. In some variants of this superstition a red-headed person of either sex is indicated. Now the standard of Hengist and Horsa, the Jutish chief who invaded England in the Fifth century, was a white horse. The Jutes were a German tribe and we have it upon the authority of Tacitus that the Germans were red haired, which the ancient Britons were not. So wherever you saw the White Horse of Hengist and Horsa you would see a red head. The general form of the superstition which specifies a red-headed woman is, apparently, an hero of the names of the Jutish chieftains, Hengist and Horsa. Wherever you saw the White Horse of Hengist you would see the red head of his brother, Horsa—the chief with the feminine name.

Man's Limitations

Man is the only one that knows nothing, that can learn nothing without being taught. He can neither speak nor walk, nor eat, and in short he can do nothing at the prompting of nature only, but weep.—Pliny the Elder (23-79 A. D.), "Natural History."

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

THE "LIBERTINE"

TODAY the libertine is a rake, a dissolute person without morals or self-restraint, who places the desire of the moment above thought of right or wrong or consideration for others. And in the history of the term we find an interesting story, a good example of the romance there is in words.

From the Latin "libertinus," libertine means literally "freedman," the original significance of the word. "Libertus" and "Libertinus" are familiar as names given by the ancient Romans to the manumitted slave.

It is said that there is but a short step between liberty and license and the quick assumption would be that from its original meaning of one who is legally free the word "libertine" was corrupted to describe one who was too free and unrestrained and so took on its present significance of dissoluteness. That, however, would be only half the story.

To complete it we must know of a pernicious sect that sprang up in the Sixteenth century in the Reformed Church of France and who called themselves the "Libertines" or Spiritual Brethren and Sisters. Under the guise of a dogma—they professed pantheism, or the worship of all gods rather than one—Libertinism soon degenerated into open and avowed sensualism. And though the cult is long extinct its name survives in the significance of our word "libertine" today.

Dean Scully's Address.

Dean Scully, in his address to the Staff, laid special emphasis on the following vital points:

There are many factors that go into the compilation of a report and financial statement that escape the notice of the casual reader and listener. May I briefly summon your attention to the consideration of one outstanding feature in order to justify our request that members of our staff lend their loyal co-operation in assisting our institution to continue its constructive program on behalf of our community.

A hospital exists for the purpose of supplying the best facilities for assisting those who are ill and who seek the aid of a physician. This naturally entails, for efficient operation, the closest supervision, as well as the installation and care of equipment that will effectively aid the physician in his work.

There is one phase of hospital operation and management that calls for the closest of cooperation between the institution and its physicians. While at no time have we ever hesitated to extend the fullest charity to any needy patient, still we have been grievously shocked by discovering an outlay of expenditures for charity patients that runs over $23,000.00. Since the doctor is the first one to establish a contact with the patient, he should consider himself a responsible agent in acquainting the patient of his hospital expense, as well as his own fee. May I here reiterate a rule embodied in the organic law of institutional care, that emphatically states that the first claim in the operation charge of an institution must be made by the institution itself, and that from henceforth, we shall have to stress the importance of this rule in order to enable our institution to conduct efficiently its operation for the benefit of the general public, whenever the public requests its services.

If, on the other hand, it can be established by a competent investigator, that there are so many cases worthy of charity, then it is the duty of the elected officers of the city to establish in their budget a sum of money that will partly take care of such cases. Otherwise, a burden will be thrust upon our hospitals, that will nullify their effectiveness in supplying the best facilities for constructive and advanced medical service.

The hospital for the coming year shall redouble its efforts to guarantee, as far as is humanly possible, a deeper and greater service to its sick clientele, and to establish itself as an assured and competent medium through which its medical personnel will give its service according to the prescribed standards of organized medical endeavor, governed and controlled by the spirit of service and ethical integrity. I publicly acknowledge that our efforts will be absolutely futile in this accomplishment, if the staggering burden of unwarranted debt, uncollectable bills, should still remain, and thus prevent us from putting into operation the ideals that should govern an institution of this type.

I respectfully ask your serious consideration to this phase of hospital operation, which has been a shocking revelation to ourselves, and an experience not creditable to those who are responsible for this condition.

Report of Secretary of Staff.

Very Rev. Father Scully, Sister Berenice, Sisters and Staff Members:

During the year 1929 the Benedictine Hospital staff held ten monthly meetings, the July and August meetings being omitted due to the vacation period. The average attendance for the year was 80%, a gain of 10% over the previous year. We are not satisfied, however, with an 80% attendance and must exert ourselves to make a greater gain during 1930. Every active member on this staff should attend every meeting. They occur but once a month; they are interesting; they are not too long; matters of importance to the hospital, patients and staff members are brought up for discussion; charts of patients who have died during the previous months are reviewed and it is essential that the doctor in charge of the case be present at such discussion.

After the business of the meeting is disposed of, a scientific paper is usually presented by a staff member, and occationally a clinic is arranged. Papers have been presented during the past year by Dr. Sibley, Dr. O'Meara, Dr. Gates, Dr. Voss and Dr. Eastman. All of them were well written and showed careful preparation. Dr. Voss, upon his return from Europe, gave several very interesting and instructive talks and illustrated them with moving pictures he took of various clinics in Vienna and other medical centers in Europe.

Dr. O'Meara, chief of staff, has continued to hold his post-operative clinics. These include patients who have been discharged from the hospital for some time, as well as those who are still receiving hospital treatment. The results of these follow-up clinics have proved most interesting and beneficial to staff members as well as to patients.

Our staff members, collectively and individually, are doing research work and perfecting themselves in the latest developments in the particular branch of medicine or surgery in which they are interested. Dr. Voss returned in June from a course of six months' study in Europe. Dr. Bush took a post-graduate course in surgery at the Mayo Brothers' Hospital in Rochester, Minn., during the summer. Various members are going to New York to the various hospitals and clinics for lectures and demonstrations during the entire year.

Our charts are in very good condition at all times. The members of the chart committee have kept constantly after the doctors to complete their charts and keep them up to date and the results have been very gratifying. Let us not drift back into the slacker state again.

There were several autopsies during the year. Most of them were instructive and showed unusual pathological conditions. We must constantly bear in mind the need to perform autopsies and obtain permission to do them whenever possible.

During the year our chief of staff, Dr. Mark O'Meara, became a Fellow in the American College of Surgeons, and his staff members join me in extending congratulations to him.

During the year also, Dr. Emil S. Goodyear became a member of our staff.

Active members have paid dues of $5 a year, out of which the secretary has paid for flowers, books, printing and other small expenses.

The staff has lost no members during the year either through death or resignation.

In closing, I take this opportunity on behalf of the staff to thank Father Scully and the Sisters for the splendid cooperation they have given the doctors during the year just passed. The innumerable demands the doctors have made upon their time and patience have always been met with ready response and cheerful assistance. Their time, energy and thought have been expended solely for the purpose of giving the best possible care and treatment to the patients we send in. We appreciate this and are truly grateful.

Respectfully submitted,
C. L. GANNON, M. D.,
Secretary of Staff.

Report of Chief of Staff Dr. Mark O'Meara to the Very Rev. Dean Scully, Sisters and Doctors:

The one great outstanding problem before the medical profession and hospitals today is that involved in the delivery of adequate, scientific medical service to all the people, rich and poor, at a cost which can be reasonably met by them in their respective stations in life.

The importance of the laboratory in hospital organization has developed by leaps and bounds during the past few years until today the average hospital finds the fulfillment of the demands upon the laboratory one of its major problems. The progress of laboratory medicine has developed a large number of tests requiring extensive equipment and highly trained personnel. The clinician of today is taught to trust the laboratory to furnish him with the necessary data in the form of laboratory reports from which he confirms or rejects his clinical impressions, but when they differ, the clinical symptoms should govern in making the diagnosis. The hospital authorities should and do, in this hospital, appreciate this relationship and offer adequate and as far as possible, superior laboratory equipment and laboratory personnel.

The hospital is deeply and rightly concerned that the charts be promptly made out and properly kept up. By doing this, we will be showing that spirit of co-operation so necessary for the success of the hospital and well-being of our patients. We must not fail to realize and appreciate our deep indebtedness to the hospital authorities, Sisters and nurses for their part in the care of our patients, nor should we fail to keep in mind that without such assistance by day and by night that our patients could not be cared for. We should, therefore, heed the request of the hospital management to do our part to keep our charts up to date.

The value of statistics as an aid to successful administration is becoming one of the truisms of our day. It is an outstanding principle that through statistical studies alone are we enabled even to approximate the truth in our hospital work with its intricate relationships.

The staff meetings should be profitable, educational, inspiring, and above everything else, the staff meetings should concern itself with the business of the hospital, which is the care of the individual patient. Staff meetings where histories are analyzed, autopsies are reported and follow-up records are discussed are of such importance to the hospital and staff members that attendance at such meetings should nearly always be 100 per cent.

A forward and progressive step has been initiated by our distinguished President, Dean Scully, in creating more definite departmental organization of the staff. This should, and I think will, make for greater efficiency in all of our work.

I am sure that Dean Scully and the Sisters are truly and deeply moved to co-operate in every way to the end that our hospital may always be one of the safest and best places for the sick.

School of Nursing.

The Very Rev. Dean Scully, Doctors and Sisters:

It is my privilege to submit to you the Annual Report of Our Lady of Victory School of Nursing of the Benedictine Hospital for the year 1929.

The teaching and nursing staff is as follows:

Sister Callista, Principal.
Sister Ursula, Instructor.
Sister Delphine, Operating Room Supervisor.
Sister Jane Frances, Obstetrical Supervisor.
Miss Mary Leonard, Day Supervisor.
Miss Mary Myers, Night Supervisor.
Sister Mary Austin, Assistant Instructor and Supervisor.
Miss Pauline Walsh, Dietitian.

The present enrollment of students is as follows:

Seniors	13
Intermediates	10
Juniors	5
Preliminary	12
	40

Of this number three will complete their course of three years within the next month. During the past year ten nurses completed their course.

The results for the Regents examinations which have been received from the Department of Education during the year, are as follows: Average for the class that took the examination in September, 1928, is 89%; average for the class that took the examination in January, 1929, is 82½%; average for the class that took the examination in May, 1929, is 85½%. The students who took the September, 1929, examinations have all successfully passed, but the marks have not yet been received from the department.

Preliminary .....622 hours
(Spring and Fall Course.)
Juniors .....200 hours
(Spring and Fall Course.)
Intermediate .....155 hours
Seniors...35 hours, plus affiliations

During the past few years Dr. Voss has given an annual prize at graduation to the most efficient nurse in theory and practical medical nursing; Dr. Rudolph A. Orth, to the nurse who has attained the highest efficiency in cleanliness and neatness; and Dr. Francis E. O'Connor to the most efficient nurse in operating room technic. To these three prizes have been added during the year. Dr. Mark O'Meara is offering an annual prize of $10 to the nurse who attains the highest efficiency in surgical nursing; Dr. Mary Gage-Day, an annual prize of $10 in gold, in memory of her parents, to the nurse with the highest scholastic average; Mrs. Philip Elting $10, to the nurse most efficient in caring for children. We want to thank these doctors and Mrs. Elting for their interest in our school. These manifestations of appreciation of the services rendered by our student nurses is a source of great encouragement to them.

During the past year we have added thirty volumes to our reference library and 84 volumes of fiction were presented to the students' library by the Ladies' Auxiliary and some of our doctors.

The Graduating Class of 1929 collaborated in writing and publishing the first year book in the history of the Training School. Their efforts received much praise.

At the beginning of last year we asked the doctors' cooperation in aiding us to bring up the obstetrical census, and we are very happy to say that through their concerted efforts we have succeeded in having the department of education withdraw this affiliation. The department feels that we are now able to give our students adequate experience in this service. May we ask the doctors at this time, for their continued support so that we may be able to meet the requirements. We still maintain the pediatric affiliation at the New York Foundling Hospital.

Miss Hawkins, the instructor from the Department of Education, in her report of her recent visit, commends the progress we have made in our school; however, she stresses the outstanding need of our training school is a new residence for the nurses with class-room units.

On account of the crowded condition in our nurses' residence at this time, it is deemed advisable not to accept a class of students until September, 1930.

We thank the Reverend Thomas and nursing staff for their splendid cooperation. Their efficient services are appreciated.

We wish to express our appreciation to the Training School Committee for their helpful interest in our school. Special mention should be made of Dr. Day, the chairman, for her personal interest in our students and to Dr. Van Norstrand, school physician.

We thank the Reverend Thomas Sanderson, who has been very zealous in giving lectures and conferences to our students.

To the Ladies' Auxiliary, we are very appreciative for their many kindnesses for the welfare of our nurses.

We are deeply grateful to our president, the Rev. Dean Scully, for his kind interest and wise counsels for the benefit of the school of nursing service.

We are very grateful to all the doctors for their cooperation and contribution to our educational program, and for their professional services rendered to our ill nurses. For the coming year may we ask for continued cooperation and helpful assistance. It is evident that the interest and enthusiasm that the lecturer and teacher puts into his work is reflected in the students, and they are thereby stimulated to render better services to the patients. In this way will our school continue to progress.

SISTER CALLISTA, R. N.,
Principal.

Superintendent's Report

Sister Berenice, superintendent of hospital, submitted the following report:

Very Rev. Father Scully, Sisters and Doctors:

With the ending of 1929, another busy year has been brought to a close at Benedictine Hospital. All previous records have been broken for the service it has given to Kingston and vicinity.

Problems will always be with us, and ours at the present time is the inadequate quarters for the proper housing of our nurses. Our most recent reports from the State Department of Education and New York State Charities tell us that they are pleased with the progress made in our hospital, but urge that every effort be put forth to provide a more modern residence, adequate in size, so that the training shool will continue to grow in ratio to the activity of our hospital. The commendation for the progress and high standard which our school is endeavoring to maintain is largely due to the cooperation and interest of Reverend Mother Monica. Mother has left nothing undone to prepare our Sisters for the various important offices in our hospital and training school. There are now eight registered nurses among the Sisters in charge of the many departments in our institution. It is needless to say what a valuable asset this continuity of service is rendering to Benedictine in the all important care of the sick. Sister Callista is declared by the state an able director of our training school. Sister Ursula continues as instructress and imparts the theoretical knowledge to our nurses.

The heads of the different departments remain the same, with the exception of the operating room, which is now in charge of Sister Delphine, and Sister Jane Frances supervises the maternity division. Sister Mary Austin, our most recent graduate, has been assigned to the nursing staff. A competent dietitian, Miss Pauline Walsh, is directing our dietery department. This department is of invaluable assistance to the doctors in preparing special diets for the treatment of their patients.

The American College of Surgeons continues to approve our work and records, and Benedictine's name again appears on their list of approved hospitals. The staff meetings were well attended during the year. This is commendable, when we recall that several of our staff were away at various times studying medicine in institutions at home and in foreign fields. Early in the year a splendid paper on "Appendicitis" was presented by Dr. ....ley, which was of great interest to the staff. An interesting demonstration on the Multothern Super Diathermy machine was given to the staff in the Nurses' Home. Its object was to show the value of using cauterization on malignant tissue. At another conference, immediately following the scientific discussion of records, the firm of Davis & Geek, manufacturers of catgut, showed a worth while series of pictures, demonstrating the use of their catgut. Most valuable knowledge and instruction was gleaned from this demonstration, which showed on films the process through which the catgut goes from the time it is obtained from the intestines of the sheep to its wonderful action in wound healing and absorption.

Dr. Voss's Homecoming

Dr. Voss's homecoming was an affair worthy of note. The entire personnel of the hospital gathered together in the Nurses' Home to express their pleasure at his return. The splendid spirit the staff displayed in welcoming one of their colleagues was highly commendable. At a later staff meeting Dr. Voss gave a very interesting lecture with films telling of his experience while abroad. At the last staff meeting a very descriptive report of the recent convention of the American College of Surgeons held in Chicago was given by Dr. Eastman. In the early fall the Victor X-ray Corporation held their educational sessions for X-ray technicians in our X-ray department. Several technicians from nearby hospitals availed themselves of this opportunity, visiting our institution several hours on the two days devoted to the sessions. The above work of the staff, together with the spirit, broad vision and urge that have prompted several of our doctors to seek more specialized courses in higher institutions of science, both at home and abroad, contributes much to the future welfare of our hospital. It is a tangible indication that the members of our staff are constantly endeavoring to meet the demands of the community and the individual needs of our patients. We trust the near future will find our hospital equipped with space so as to conduct a pre-natal clinic and other various forms of clinical research that is much needed in a community.

It was a great pleasure to learn of Dr. O'Meara's entrance into the Fellowship of the College of Surgeons. This is an added impetus to other members of the staff to become members and thus continue to enhance our hospital by such contact. We thank our doctors sincerely for the interest and efforts they are continually manifesting in our hospital and training school.

To His Eminence Patrick Cardinal Hayes we are indebted for his fatherly solicitude in our hospital. To our Very Reverend President, Joseph B. Scully, Dean, we owe much for the rapid growth of our institution. His time, energy and best care has been the great driving force that has assisted in its development. Under his influence and inspiration we have been inspired to raise our hospital to the high standard which it occupies today. We also express our appreciation for the service rendered to our hospital by our chaplain, Rev. John de Kroon. For the ready response at all times to our calls for service, and the deep interest manifested in our institution, we are truly grateful to Honorable Mayor Dempsey and the Board of Public Works. We are also appreciative of the services and interest shown by the Fire Department, with its leader and Chief Joseph Murphy. The hospitals of Kingston have been most fortunate in the loyal support that they have received from the press. By no better means are our problems brought before the public than by the splendid write-ups and space of our home papers. For this generous attitude we are grateful to the staffs of both the Kingston Daily Freeman and the Kingston Daily Leader.

Thank Ladies' Auxiliary.

We sincerely thank the Ladies' Auxiliary under the leadership of Mrs. Nicholas D. J. Murphy, for having accomplished untold good for our institution during the year. Interest and cooperation on the part of the various committees made the Charity Ball and National Hospital Day program huge successes, likewise the various card parties, cake and rummage sales. There has been a decided increase in membership, for which we are also grateful. The unflagging interest and industry of the sewing committees have kept us well supplied with articles for our hospital. The purchasing was well done. The publicity has spoken for itself in reminding people of the many activities of the Auxiliary. The hospital and nurses' home were both beautifully decorated for Christmas by members of the Auxiliary. The Auxiliary furnished a private room in the hospital and also placed eight easy chairs in our rooms to increase the comfort of our patients and to make their surroundings more homelike. For all this splendid work done, we express our appreciation to each and every member of the Auxiliary. Saugerties Auxiliary and the circles of the various branches have been giving of their time and means to assist the hospital. The Rosendale Auxiliary, just recently organized, promising to join the active line to aid Benedictine.

There is never a time that new and approved equipment is not required in an active hospital. A Basal metabolism machine has been recently installed to increase the efficiency of the doctors in the proper diagnosis of the patients. Portable lights have been secured for use in our emergency and delivery rooms. The increase in service in our maternity department has necessitated the furnishing of two new rooms with metal beds, dressers, bedside stands and clothes cabinets; also seven bassinettes and utility cabinets for the nursery. Several other metal beds, etc., were secured for service in the hospital. A sectional medicine cabinet was placed in our laboratory department. Several filing cabinets for filing our records were also purchased. For durability and service, a new tile floor was laid on the second floor between the old and new wings. Metal weather stripping has been placed on all of the exposed windows on the front and sides of the entire building. A beautiful large rug was placed in the reception room.

Time is passing, but we have been ever mindful and truly grateful to our president, Very Rev. Joseph B. Scully, Dean, and Hon. Philip Elting and their coworkers who were instrumental in removing our debt. So far $143,920.96 has been paid of the $179,684.27 which was pledged. It was a marvelous piece of work and showed the public's appreciation of the service rendered in our hospital. There are some pledges yet unpaid. We are confident, however, that in due time these obligations will be liquidated.

In summing up the various activities of the year, it is impossible to remember by name all who have contributed to our work and the comfort of the patients. Flowers, fruit, magazines, daily newspapers, and various other gifts have been sent to cheer those who were disabled or ill, and for these we are most thankful. To those, and there are many, who have spoken kindly and with appreciation of our efforts and have taken the trouble to tell others of satisfaction with their treatment and with the kindness of our nurses who are constantly contributing their faithful service—to these also we are grateful. With the blessing of God on our work, may the new year find us continuing with renewed energy, and if possible with more zealous effort, so that we may steadily advance in the motive, purpose and the service that first inspired the founding of our institution.

INSTALLS OFFICERS OF PHOENICIA I. O. O. F. LODGE.

West Shokan, Jan. 15.—A large delegation of members of Shokan Lodge, No. 491, accompanied District Deputy Gordon and staff for the installation at Phoenicia Lodge on Tuesday evening. There was also a delegation of brothers present from Port Ewen. Preceding the installation the degree of Truth was conferred upon John Buhrer and Reynold Sickler by a degree team composed of members of each lodge. Past District Deputy Arthur E. Trowbridge made a most impressive Bible presentation to the candidates at the conclusion of the conferring of the degree.

Following are the elective and appointive officers for the ensuing year: The retiring noble grand, the Rev. McBain, acting past grand; noble grand, Archie Stewart; vice grand, Martin Johnson; financial secretary, Wilbur Van Steenburg; recording secretary, Royal Morris; treasurer, Lester Bell; right supporter noble grand, S. B. Schwarzwaelder; left supporter noble grand, William Smith; warden, Alfred Whilpell; conductor, Theodore Vosse; right supporter vice grand, Alonzo Wright; left supporter vice grand, Henry Hanel; right scene supporter, Scott Sickler; left scene supporter, D. R. Hilson; inside guardian, Charles Neice; outside guardian, William Krom; chaplain, Justin Wright.

At the conclusion of the ceremony of installation, Noble Grand Stewart called upon the district deputy, who responded with a message of inspiration for Phoenicia Lodge. Following the deputy's address, which was accorded hearty applause, adjournment was had to the banquet hall, where a sumptuous banquet was served. The menu consisted of roast pork, mashed potatoes and dressing, pickles, celery, crullers, apple sauce, coffee, Hosler's ice cream in individual sealed containers and cigars.

Toastmaster S. B. Schwarzwaelder gave an interesting outline of proposed activities for the coming year in the promotion of Odd Fellowship in Ulster county. His remarks were enthusiastically received and allegiance pledged to his program. Much credit is due this generous and influential brother, who has aided so materially in making Phoenicia Lodge one of the outstanding lodges in Ulster district. In response Past Deputy Trowbridge gave hearty approval of the proposed program. Members of the deputy's staff, the noble grand of Shokan Lodge and the Port Ewen brothers likewise briefly responded, all giving unstinted thanks to Phoenicia Lodge, which was also given a rising vote of thanks by the members of Shokan Lodge. Remarks by the Rev. Brothers Coffey and McBain and that loyal Odd Fellow, William Smith, of Phoenicia Lodge, brought to a fitting conclusion a most enjoyable evening.

7 Hours in Bed and Not 7 Minutes' Sleep!

The Toll Acidity Takes

When you go to bed dog-tired and still can't sleep and you rise in the morning more tired than when you went to bed, it is a sign you're "acid." Excess acid, formed in the stomach as a result of our unnatural eating habits, causes acid-indigestion with gas, sourness and burning and sets up poisonous putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal which saps our strength and vitality and so taxes our nerves that we can't sleep at night or work efficiently during the day.

Magnesia Oxolds, developed in Germany by a famous, 100-year-old pharmaceutical house, correct acidity in the right way. Upon contact with the acid in the stomach, Magnesia Oxolds generate nascent, or active, oxygen. The "live" oxygen stimulates the alkaline gastric mucus, checks putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal and stimulates the activities of the intestinal walls which aids the natural movement of the bowels. All three effects are necessary to the true correction of acidity.

5-Day Acidity Test

To ascertain just how "acid" you are, make this test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxolds from McBride Drug Store or any other good druggist. Take two after each meal for a few days and see how much better you feel—how much more soundly you sleep and how much more energy you have. If you don't get more than amazing results, return the balance of the Oxolds to the druggist and he will refund the purchase price promptly and in full.

Don't Upset Child's Stomach to Cure Cold

Just Rub on "Save the Baby" for Quick Relief.

Children's stomachs are delicate. Don't upset them by dosing to cure a cold. At first signs of snuffles or cough, just rub "Save the Baby" on nose and chest. Stops congestion, coughs and snuffles; makes breathing easy. Recommended by doctors and used by mothers for over 59 years. Never fails to give quick help for coughs, colds, croup. ORDINARILY the usual low temperature in the General Electric Refrigerator... always well below 50°... is sufficient for all food preservation purposes, as well as for the normal supply of ice cubes. But there are times when a greater degree of cold is required for desserts or a still greater number of ice cubes.

The General Electric Freezing Regulator has been scientifically designed to meet such emergencies. It is on top of the cabinet, with the rest of the mechanism, where it can be seen and adjusted with least trouble.

PRINTS CHANGE IN CHARACTER BUT NOT IN VALUE

New York.—The printed chiffon and printed crepe frock refuses to be ousted from the spring program. Their renewed success at Palm Beach seems to assure them a successful season.

As befits the somewhat mid-Victorian aspect of so many successful fashions, the feeling for prints seems to be for small, somewhat prim designs. There are the usual exceptions, but few of them are based on ultra modern ideas, which is logical. Most silhouettes are anything but modern.

Floral motifs, often in bouquet effects, are peculiarly in keeping with the prevailing shades and silhouettes. Both are soft, pastel tones having a wide appeal. Molyneux has had considerable success with his delicate face powder pink, while one frequently hears mentio not only of baby blue, but other nursery shades. Pastel motifs on a black ground have a chance of winning out, and there are of course any number of black and white prints as well as those to which one color has been added.

Jacquard patterns with other prints are among the novelties. For those who are shy of printed fabrics and weary of plain ones, there are satin striped chiffons, an old favorite revived with confidence.

There is the usual talk, when planning spring costumes, of a revival of polka dots. It seems to be founded on rather substantial evidence. Polka dotted taffeta presents a delightful possibility for town wear and polka dotted silks of various kinds have a strong appeal.

Mention should be made of some large striking floral designs on lame or metal as well as on taffeta. These are intended for evening.

OUR DAILY PATTERN

A Pretty Morning Frock.

6691. Blue and white plaid gingham and organdy are here combined. Cotton prints, tub silk, linen and cotton broadcloth are also suggested. The front of the dress is finished with a deep V shaped plastron that may be omitted, as shown in the front view. A rolled collar outlines a V neck opening. The dress may be made with long shoulders and no sleeves or with the regulation shoulder and short sleeves, finished with a facing. Below the hips platt inserts supply graceful fulness.

This pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. To make the dress for a 38 inch size will require 3½ yards of 35 inch material. For collar, belt and sleeve facings of contrasting material ⅝ yard 35 inches wide is required, (cut crosswise). The width of the dress at the lower edge with plaits extended is 2 yards.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

"Rinso for whiter washes and for safety!"
say makers of 38 leading washers

When the makers of 38 leading washers urge women to use Rinso—you can be sure there's a reason.

In tub or washer, Rinso washes clothes the whitest, brightest snowiest white you ever saw! Its thick suds loosen dirt. Not a bit of hard rubbing, no boiling—all you need to do is rinse.

Clothes last longer this safe way. Hands are spared, too. And my, how economical Rinso is! One cupful gives more suds than two cupfuls of lightweight, puffed-up soaps . . . because it's granulated, compact.

For tub washing—you just can't do without Rinso! It soaks clothes whiter than they can be scrubbed. Get the BIG handy household package now.

Relief from Gas Stomach Pains Dizziness

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are likely to get sick unless you relish food and digest it properly.

Tanlac has a wonderful record as a relief from digestive troubles, even those of years' standing.

Local people, many of whom you know, are highly endorsing Tanlac. For example, Mrs. Ellen White says: "For years I suffered from indigestion. I got no relief from anything until I took Tanlac. After my fourth bottle, I feel like a new person and have a fine appetite."

If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation, or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run down, you need Tanlac. It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you. Accept no substitute.

John Sudam and Martin Van Buren

(By C. A. Winchell)

Shokan, Jan. 16—In his latest book, "An Epoch and a Man," recently published by Horace Liveright, of New York, Dennis Tilden Lynch describes most interestingly the tilt which took place between Martin Van Buren, Republican (old style), and John Sudam, Federalist.

The quarrel between Surrogate Van Buren and Sudam, a prominent lawyer of Kingston, resulted from a political clash in which Jacob Rutsen VanRennsselaer, one of Columbia county's representatives in the Assembly, and Van Buren figured as principals. This dispute, which Mr. Lynch thoroughly covers in Chapter XI of his 666-page historical work, and its inception in a reported statement by Rennsselaer that the tenants of the manor were not fit to govern themselves and "deserved to have a master." Van Buren, himself a product of one of the manor towns across the Hudson, promptly took up the cudgel in behalf of his people, and the result was a bitter duel of words between the two men and a further widening of the gulf between the future president and Columbia county's aristocrats.

Mr. Lynch's story of that part of the controversy which has to do with John Sudam follows, in part:

"At the fall term of the Supreme Court (in 1811), the long-drawn-out action of the Van Rennsselaers to dispossess the people of Kinderhook from the homes they and their ancestors had honestly held for more than a century and a quarter, came to trial. Van Buren, as chief counsel for the defendants, attacked the credibility of a surveyor formerly in the employ of the defendants....Counsel for the Van Rennsselaers included Elisha Williams, his brother-in-law, Thomas P. Grosvenor, then a member of the assembly, and later congressman, and John Sudam, of Kingston, a prominent Federalist on the other side of the Hudson, and in after years a member of the state senate. Sudam was very young and very impetuous.

"During the impeachment of the surveyor's credibility, Sudam interrupted Van Buren with offensive personal references. Van Buren, who had not yet acquired the capacity of ignoring attacks that recalled on their makers, answered in language equally abusive.....

"On Sunday, Van Rennsselaer—the same Jacob Van Rennsselaer who had had the encounter with Van-Buren—gave a dinner at his mansion in Claverack, to which were invited the counsel in the case and other leading members of his party who were stopping in Hudson for the November term of court. The Livingstons came from their ancient seat to grace the gathering. Wine flowed freely, and friend and foe entered into hilarious conversation. Naturally there were unpleasant criticisms made of Van Buren. Just what was said at this dinner concerning Van-Buren is not known; but the next morning, while Van Buren was seated in court waiting for a case to be called, Elisha William's brother-in-law called him out and, announcing that he was acting as the second for Sudam, presented him with a challenge and generously offered to try to compose their differences.

"Van Buren, smarting under the continued partisan assaults, just and otherwise, which had been visited upon him since he was a boy in Francis Silvester's law office; thanked Grosvenor, and said that he had passed the point of endurance, and that he would make a formal reply through his friend, George Morell, who, he was certain, would serve as his second.

"Van Buren had a total disregard of consequence once he had embarked on a given course. He seldom gave quarter to a partisan foe; and never asked for any. He did not believe in the code duello, but to decline the challenge would have called for more moral courage than he possessed; ancient tradition sanctioned the custom, and good society approved it. ....He was being forced to the wall. Well he would face them and fight back.

"After court adjourned he asked Morell to serve as his second. Morell agreed. He then sat down and wrote a formal acceptance, which is preserved with his papers.....The small, narrow sheet of note paper was handed to Morell. VanBuren then went home.

"The next morning Morell returned with word that Grosvenor, who had been roundly scored by his brother-in-law and his friends for delivering the challenge, had withdrawn as Sudam's second. Morell had gone to Sudam, who declined to receive Van-Buren's acceptance, insisting that it must come through Grosvenor. Van-Buren, his fighting blood up, dispatched Morell to Sudam with a verbal proposal that they select others to act as seconds. Back from Sudam's hotel came Morell; under the circumstances Sudam could not dispense with Grosvenor's services. VanBuren, unsatisfied, sat at his desk, carefully selected his broadest quill, and wrote on a large sheet of paper. In another minute he was on his way to Sudam's hotel, where he posted Sudam as a coward. The threatened encounter ended with Van Buren, Sudam, and their seconds being bound over to keep the peace.

"For years Van Buren and Sudam did not speak, although the latter made several indirect overtures for peace. One day, when unexpectedly seated opposite each other in a tavern during the noon recess of court, Sudam, recovered from his astonishment, asked VanBuren to pass a bottle of native wine on the dining tables. VanBuren, instead of passing the bottle, asked Sudam if he would drink a glass with him. After toasting each other they returned to court together arm in arm."

Thus happily ended the Van-Buren-Sudam episode. Mr. Lynch, in his next chapter, goes on to say that the aborted duel between these two lawyers gave Kinderhook man his first public prominence outside of the Dutch counties, of which Ulster was, of course, one. Newspaper accounts of the controversy received wide publication, and VanBuren came to be regarded by many as the intended victim of blind Federalist rage. In justice to the memory of those who dined at Van Rennsselaer's, it is pointed out by the author that there probably had been no talk of a duel at the affair, unless, possibly, between Sudam and Grosvenor.

In "An Epoch of a Man," Mr. Lynch, whose home is in Shokan, also makes mention of Moses I. Cantine, brother-in-law of VanBuren, and of George Clinton. The book is dedicated to the author's wife, Mrs. Florence Lynch, who together with her children, is spending the winter at the Lynch place near Pice-Tenyck mountain.

Court Orders Deductions From Alimony Payments

El Paso, Texas.—Rebates come in handy any time but a rebate on alimony is particularly gratifying. Manuel Chavira told Judge Caldwell he saw his estranged wife in company with another man. The judge ordered a rebate of $2. Later Caldwell saw his wife with two other men. Judge Caldwell promptly ordered $4 deducted from his regular monthly alimony payment.

How Color Blindness Will Be Transmitted

When a color blind man marries a color blind woman, all children will be color blind. If the same man marries a normal woman all children will be apparently normal, though the daughters may transmit the defect to their sons. Should a color blind man marry a woman that is a carrier, half his daughters will be color blind, the other half carriers, while his sons run an even chance of being color blind or normal. When, however, a normal man marries a normal woman there will, of course, be no color blindness among the offspring nor among the descendants, unless some of them intermarry with strains that are affected. A normal man marrying a carrier may expect half his sons to be normal, the other half color blind. His daughters will all be apparently normal, but half of them will be carriers. But when a normal man marries a color blind woman he may expect all of his sons to be color blind and all of his daughters to be carriers.—Good Health.

AGILE MEN KEEP LIGHTS BURNING IN EIFFEL TOWER

Seventy Thousand Bulbs in Colossal Electric Sign 1,000 Feet Above Street Level.

Paris.—Men more agile than monkeys are required to keep the 70,000 lamps of the Eiffel tower electric sign burning in full glory every night up to 1,000 feet above the street level.

The colossal electric sign which flashes the name of the Citroen automobile in multicolored splendor high over the Seine and far into the surrounding plane of the Isle de France, keeps three acrobatic workmen constantly climbing, sliding, hanging and swinging high over the city replacing the lamps that burn out, and the fuses that blow out. Monsieur Douanel, the chief, and his two assistants, Heins and Schepflin, operate from a veritable electric warehouse situated about 300 feet up, and run in and out all day long with their basket of globes of various colors.

Three blues must be replaced about 800 feet up, a couple of whites down on the 200-foot level, some reds and some oranges are burned out up at the summit. All these must be replaced daily, and Chief Douanel makes the rounds and gives the orders, taking a handful of globes himself and scampering out on a two-inch bar as if he were walking along the boulevard.

Visitors to the Eiffel tour often took the other way when they see these human flies leaning far out inserting a globe, supported by one foot in an angle bar, with a leg swung over a transverse girder, hands and teeth performing in the interests of rejuvenated illumination.

The baskets carrying the globes are usually held in the teeth while these monkey men are scampering over the surface of the huge electric letters. Tools are attached to their belts and altogether it is doubtful if a monkey could climb as well and get about with such ease.

"Monkeys have tails to help them," Douanel contends, "and when these tourists compare us to monkeys, they are not doing us justice. A monkey has four hands, and we have only two, and moreover, those two are usually busy, not holding us up, but pushing in lamps and examining fuses."

Bitter Legal Battle Over Calf Worth $10

Tryon, N. C.—A male calf, the original value of which was $10, is the center of a bitter legal battle being waged between Harrison Bridgeman and Judd Grizzle, of this place, both of whom are claiming ownership, and the case will be carried to the Superior court of Polk county on an appeal from the decision of Justice Zeb Rhodes, who had awarded Bridgeman possession of the animal.

Both Bridgeman and Grizzle owned calves born last February. Grizzle acquired one of them by purchase and, singularly enough, consigned it to a pasture in which the one owned by Bridgeman was kept. One of the calves died, and Grizzle, not sure of the identity of the one living, took its former owner to the pasture, where it was identified as the one sold, according to the records.

Grizzle laid claim and drove the animal away. Bridgeman then came forward with the allegation that Grizzle had stolen his calf and had him arrested for larceny. At a subsequent trial before a jury the charge was dismissed.

But Grizzle, not satisfied with the verdict, announced an appeal. In order to keep the calf he was compelled to give $200 bond and agreed to provide its keep until next spring.

Canadians Snare Wolf, Terror of Deer Herd

Toronto, Ont.—A large gray wolf, which for months has terrorized the large herds of deer roaming through Algonquin Park, is dead.

Traps had been set in vain until it appeared he would never be caught.

Jim Shields, chief park ranger, finally outwitted the wolf by placing a cunningly laid trap fastened to a four-inch pole. Visiting this snare one day, Shields found the trap gone. The wolf had gnawed through the thick pole and taken the trap away with him. Shields and his assistants followed the trail and after twenty-seven miles of tramping came upon the body of the wolf with the trap still fast to its foreleg.

California to Make Mental Hygiene Survey

San Francisco.—Dr. Frederick H. Allen of Philadelphia, who has been selected to serve as director of the mental hygiene survey authorized by the 1929 legislature, will arrive here in a short time to begin work upon the survey. The purpose of the mental hygiene survey is to take stock of conditions in California related to delinquency and mental disorder, defect and disease, to bring together all the forces working to ameliorate and prevent these conditions.

China Planning Relief for Victims of Famine

Shanghai.—Plans formulated by the state council at Nanking provide for employment of famine sufferers in land reclamation work in the northwestern provinces of China and along the frontiers. Foodstuffs are also to be transported to the stricken areas.

Talkie recording instruments, says a news item, are so delicate that even a pin drop will register, but we suppose that by this time the assistant directors have acquired the knack of nodding inaudibly.

Some of the college professors are dreadfully worried because youth does so little original thinking. Perhaps it would do more if some of the professors would stop talking long enough to give it a chance.

Ask Me

She had done everything wrong. She had disregarded the signal lights, then stalled in the middle of the street, and before starting had taken out her powder puff and started to apply it to her face. An irate traffic officer rushed up:

"Say, lady, do you know anything at all about traffic rules?"

"Why, yes. What is it that you want to know?"—Chatham News.

Perfected Air Brake

George Westinghouse in the autumn of 1868 completed his working model air brake. According to Scribner's "History of American Invention," the event took place in Pittsburgh. After some difficulties in putting on a demonstration, a trial was made on the Panhandle railroad, and a dramatic incident, which resulted in saving the life of a drayman during this trial, assured success to the new device.

SENATE VOTES TO RETAIN EXISTING SUGAR TARIFFS.

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP).—The Senate today voted to retain the existing sugar tariffs.

It adopted a proposal by Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, to substitute present levies for the increases proposed by the Finance Committee Republicans.

The vote was 48 to 38.

The present duty on Cuban raw sugar is 1.76 cents a pound and that against other countries is 2.20 cents.

These were raised by the Finance Committee Republicans to 2.20 and 2.75 cents, respectively, while the House bill provided duties of 2.40 and 3 cents.

EIELSON AND BORLAND ARE REPORTED SOUND

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 16 (AP).—The reports saying that Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, missing since November 9 between Teller, Alaska, and North Cape, Siberia, have been found, is plausible but so far only a rumor, R. S. Pallister, Seattle manager of the Swanson Fur Trading Company, owner of the ice bound vessel, Nanuk, at North Cape, said today upon receipt of the information.

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP).—Treasury receipts for January 14 were $4,-168,594.49; expenditures $5,316,-399.21; balance $111,444,284.71.

WATCH OUT FOR NEXT MONDAY'S ANNOUNCEMENT IN ORPHEUM AD.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 16 (AP).—Persistent demand for utility and several of the leading industrial shares lifted the stock market irregularly higher today, despite another bear onslaught against isolated shares. Trading expanded notably. Sales during the first two hours of trading totaled nearly 1,500,000, exceeding the turnover for the full five hour session on Monday.

Failure of the heavy selling of Montgomery Ward to unsettle the market yesterday was reassuring to operators for the rise, and a vigorous bear drive against Radio today was viewed nonchalantly in most quarters, although several of the motors and oils were inclined to sag.

The Bank of England made no change in its discount rate of 5 per cent and hopes of a decrease in the New York Federal Reserve Bank rate late today vanished. Credit conditions continued easy, however, and the belief persisted in banking quarters that money rates are definitely headed lower. Call loans again renewed at 4½ per cent, but funds were soon available at 4.

Radio was driven down more than 3 points in heavy selling, and Crosley dropped to a new low. Auburn Auto lost more than 5 points. Magma Copper lost nearly 3, reflecting unfavorable December statistics. Other shares losing a point or so included Standard of New Jersey, Texas Company, Chrysler, Studebaker, General Motors, Warner Brothers, and Sears Roebuck. Montgomery Ward, yesterday's soft spot, rallied a couple of points, then reacted.

Allied Chemical, General Electric, Worthington Pump, Standard Gas, and American Zinc mounted 3 to 6 points, and International Silver 7. Stocks selling up 2 points or more included Consolidated Gas, United Gas Improvement, American Water Works, Western Union, Westinghouse Electric, Eastman Kodak, A. M. Byers, Allis Chalmers, United Carbon, U. S. Freight, and Associated Dry Goods.

Quake in Southern California.

Los Angeles, Jan. 16 (AP).—The earthquake which shook a large section of Southern California late yesterday was found today to have registered more sharply in the inland mountain areas, although no appreciable damage was reported. Two distinct quakes, at 4:25 and 4:35 p. m., were felt generally from the sea eastward to the Coachella valley, and from San Diego to the Mojave desert.

Market For Fruits And Vegetables

New York, Jan. 16—(State Department of Agriculture and Markets).—The tone of the market was about steady on state apples, arrivals were moderate and the demand was fair especially on attractive quality, well packed fruit. Jobbing on western New York Baldwins, U. S. Grade No. 1, 2½ inches, was transacted from $1.50-$2 per bushel basket, mainly $1.75; McIntosh of the same grade and size brought from $2.25-$3. Rhode Island Greenings $2.25-$2.50; occasionally $2.75; and various other varieties sold from $1.50-$2.25.

Little activity was noted for state, yellow onions. Receipts were relatively light but the outlet was limited. The best offerings from western New York wholesaled at $1.85 to $2 per 100 pound sack, while inferior sold down to $1.50. New York state to January 11 shipped 2,975 carloads of onions compared with 1,316 for the corresponding period last season.

The market continued lifeless on western New York, unwashed, sacked carrots. The demand was very slow and receipts were again light. Sales on one hundred pound sacks were reported on the downtown piers at chiefly $1.50-$1.65.

State old crop cabbage was in moderate supply, a large percentage of the offerings showed ordinary to poor quality, consequently the demand was generally slow, at railroad yards, while Danish type cabbage in bulk, peddled out on the basis of from $35-$40 per ton, occasionally higher on stock which showed attractive quality. Red cabbage realized from $40-$50 except on inferior and small stock, which was practically neglected.

BREAK IN LEVEE FLOODS THOUSANDS OF ACRES

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 16 (AP).—Swollen streams broke their bounds today in two states in the lower Mississippi valley. Smashing a gap in the levee between Lambert and Marks, Miss., water from Coldwater river was spreading over several thousand acres of farm land in Quitman county, and in Arkansas the St. Francis river overtopped its banks in Greene county, near the town of Hertig.

NAVAL DELEGATION STRIKES STORM

S. S. George Washington, Jan. 16 (AP).—This ship, carrying the American delegation to the London naval conference, before dawn today ran head on into a gale with wind blowing 80 miles an hour. Giant seas smashed port holes, mounted the decks, and cut the speed of the boat to ten knots.

THE JOINERS

News of Interest to Members of Fraternal Societies.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of A. O. H., Division No. 5, meets tonight at the home of Mrs. McAndrew, 18 Adams street.

The recently elected officers of the Shepherds of Bethlehem will be installed this evening at the meeting in Mechanics' Hall and every member is urged to attend the meeting. Following the close refreshments will be served and a social hour enjoyed.

At the regular meeting of Judea Shrine, No. 12, W. S. of J., to be held this evening in Masonic Hall, Wall street, Soj. Mary E. Bartlett, supreme worthy high priestess, and Soj. Erford W. Poole, supreme watchman of shepherds, will make their official visit. Several candidates will be initiated, and all sojourners are urged to be present.

At the annual meeting of the Craftmens Club of Kingston Lodge No. 10 F. & A. M., held in the lodge rooms Monday evening, January 13, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year. L. J. Rose, president; H. D. Darrow, vice president; A. J. Keator, secretary and treasurer; Ed Gerlach, steward. After the election strawberry short cake, which had been daintily prepared by the steward, was served.

At a regular meeting of the Marine Engineers Association the following officers were elected: Louis Tremper, president; Ralph Nickerson, first vice president; Fred Balzer, second vice president; Andrew Tubby, recording secretary; Frank Stengeline, financial secretary; David Mellert, conductor. Trustees: Charles Nickerson, Andrew Tubby and Frederick Balzer, Sr. J. C. Alton, business manager; Frank Stengeline, door keeper.

Pretty Girl Has Edge Over Her Plain Sister

Pretty girls "get away with murder" in New York. Most of them, knowing the power they wield over the other sex, take advantage of the men in various ways.

The traffic policemen are particularly susceptible, and the fair ones aim their shafts particularly at them. For instance, if they want to cross a street against traffic they merely take a step or two from the curb and then give a little shriek when a car approaches. That's the cue for the officer to look in their direction; and, when he sees them smile, he holds up his hand, brings all traffic to a stop and escorts them across, exchanging a little blarney with them en route. And the policemen love it.

Then there are the girls who frequent soda fountains at noon. They quickly learn the names of the dispensers, and soon they will work them this way: "Oh, Artie, don't be so stingy with that whipped cream," or, "Jimmy, fill up this cup; coffee was too cold."

Well, why kick? Give the little girls a big handout.—New York Sun.

If he has begun to think he looks distinguished, he is a little past 40.

FARM POULTRY

EGG PRODUCTION CUT BY SKIMPING

Fresh Water Must Be Furnished in Clean Vessels.

If Biddy is well-bred and properly managed, she will produce for her owner 144 eggs a year. But to lay those 12 dozen eggs weighing 18 pounds requires from 70 to 90 pounds of feed.

"Skimping on feed simply means that egg production is being cut down," says C. T. Klein, extension poultryman, Kansas State Agricultural college. "Out of every five pounds of feed a hen eats while in good laying condition, four pounds are used to maintain her body and one pound is turned into eggs."

Another item in egg production must be kept in mind—eggs cannot be produced unless the feed contains the materials from which eggs are made, cautions the poultry specialist. By way of strengthening this point, he says that an egg, exclusive of the shell, is made up of 74 per cent water; 15 per cent protein; 10 per cent fat, and 1 per cent mineral.

Water for the egg must be furnished by means of plenty of fresh water in clean drinking equipment.

Fat is made from grain and starchy feed.

Lime, found chiefly in the shell, comes from oyster shell or limestone.

In stressing the need for mash, Klein assures poultry raisers that if home-grown grains are used a ration composed of 100 pounds each of corn, wheat, and oats with 75 pounds of meat scraps added may be mixed for approximately $2.00.

High Ceilings Cause of Low Winter Production

Poultry experts at the Minnesota Agricultural college have found that high ceilings and much unused space above the hens are among the most common causes of low winter egg production. Hen houses are warmed with heat produced by the hens, and if too much unused space must be warmed, it uses up hen energy which otherwise might be used in producing eggs. This trouble is most easily remedied by building a straw loft in the hen house at a height of about six feet above the floor.

Besides making the house easier to heat, the straw loft absorbs moisture and helps to solve the ventilation problem. Simply nail boards or poles at the right height and cover them with at least two feet of straw. Burlapped or slatted windows should be left in each gable near the peak to carry off the moist air, or regular ventilating heads can be installed on top if desired. Plenty of fresh air will usually enter through cracks, around windows and doors, and around the outer edges of the straw loft.

Poultry Notes

Clean ground is the most important item in raising chicks successfully.

* * *

Mate the flocks three weeks before hatching eggs are desired to insure a high per cent of fertility.

* * *

* * *

Serious cases of feather plucking have been traced to lice infestation, and an examination of one or two birds will provide information on this point. Where such a state exists the remedy is obvious.

* * *

Houses located and built to promote sanitation, provide comfortable quarters with fresh air and to admit direct sunlight (unfiltered through ordinary glass) add materially to the content of the owner.

* * *

It is quite probable that the pullets will lay enough more eggs when kept by themselves to compensate for the few less eggs the hens will lay if allowed to range in winter.

* * *

Flock owners who trapnest some of their layers will want to make sure that the birds get credit for every egg that is laid.

* * *

Anyone with experience knows that where pullets and hens are housed together the pullets fail to develop as well as when kept by themselves.

* * *

Where they are to be sold as green ducks at ten to twelve weeks, the young ducks are usually not allowed to range but are fed heavily from the first.

* * *

Free range on ground that is clean and free from disease producing organism is much better for hens than confinement in houses.

* * *

If the poultry house is in good condition, put the pullets in in September. If it is dirty and full of mites leave them out.

When Sight Returns

A girl falling in love thinks of the funny looking, spindly little man she loves as a god. But let her marry him and he remains her god about as long as a rose retains its beauty. It's too bad, but it's true.—Nellie Webb in the Atchison Globe.

Odds and Ends

There will be a card party at Cordts Hose engine rooms on Monday evening, January 20. Refreshments will be served. The public is invited.

There will be a card party at the Congregation Ahavath Israel Hall on Wurts street, Sunday night. Games will start at 8 o'clock. The public is invited.

There will be a progressive pinochle and pivot bridge card party held by C. D. of A. at Knights of Columbus Hall, Thursday evening, January 23. The public is invited.

The regular mid-week service will be held at the Upper Room Mission, 562 Broadway, top floor, near the West Shore, Friday evening at 7:30. These services are said to be full of interest every minute. Everyone welcome.

SHOKAN.

Shokan, Jan. 16.—Services will be held in the Olive-Hurley Baptist church, Sunday, January 19, morning and afternoon. Elder George Ruston will preach both sermons on Sunday. Elder Ruston, who resigned from this charge last year in order to take up his residence in Canada, is very popular with local Old School Baptists and it is expected that large congregations will be present to hear him expound the Scriptures in the good old-fashioned way.

David Furman, who has been visiting at Daniel Sampson's, has returned to his home in Kingston.

A quilting bee was scheduled to be held by the ladies of the Aid Society at Mrs. Golden Van Benschoten's on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Christiana are spending some time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Sahlbeck on the north boulevard. Mrs. Christiana, who is the daughter of Mrs. Sahlbeck, has been in poor health of late.

On Friday, January 17, 28 years ago, the dead body of Luther Krom was found along the Ulster & Delaware railroad tracks, between West Shokan and Boiceville. Mr. Krom was a bachelor resident of that section.

The tax-gathering party held in the village hall January 14 was a success as usual. At this affair the genial host was Charles Jansen, town collecter, and assisting Mr. Jansen at the tables were Chester Lyons, Elson Oakley and Martin J. Every. Guests who dropped in during the day included nearly all the resident property-holders of Shokan, Ashokan, Browns Station and Boiceville. Both collectors and their invited neighbors played at "put and take" at frequent intervals, and during the noontime lull the mazuma gatherers were served with an excellent dinner in the restaurant room downstairs. These get-together parties have been staged annually by representatives of the town government and the public for more than a century and are still enjoyed quite as much as they ever were.

Burton Castle, the alert fish and game protector of Kingston, made a tour of the reservoir preserves one day recently. Although there is not much hunting and fishing at this time of the year, our guardians of the finny denizens of the deeps, and feathered and furry dwellers in the great open spaces, must nevertheless do a certain amount of patrolling just the same. When the ice is thick enough on the big pond there is some pickerel fishing; but the ice is an uncertain quantity this year.

The gang of telephone linemen who are placing poles in the vicinity of the spillway were marooned here on Monday and Tuesday by the rain. On Monday these hardy fellows did not get in much work, but for a while on Tuesday afternoon the weather cleared a little and the boys immediately got busy on the job. The current week has been a bad one, economically speaking, a number of local men having been idle because of adverse weather conditions. It was wet out in the woods and just as damp on the woodpiles, so that both chopping and sawing were out of the question.

Hobart Rowe of West Hurley was a business caller in Shokan last Tuesday afternoon.

A social will be held in the Reformed church basement on Friday evening, January 31, for the benefit of the playground fund. There will be games and refreshments at this party and a silver offering will be taken. A tennis court and facilities for other games have been planned for the grounds near the church by the Rev. August Pfaus, the pastor, and others in the community who have interested themselves in this work.

The Boiceville school is in charge of Miss Murphy of Arkville this term. There are 10 pupils attending.

Arthur Carter, superintendent of the Vanderbent estate on the heights, has moved the wood and engine houses built by the late William Bogart to a new site in the rear of the house now occupied by the Carters and Mrs. Jane Bogart. The removal of these buildings from the place along the road where they have stood so long is a considerable improvement to the Vanderbent property.

A wedding of January 18, 1860, was that which united the lives of Charles Davis, Jr., and Susan Hardenburg. The Rev. W. R. Betts, pastor of the Reformed church, officiated at the ceremony. Mr. Davis was a great grandson of Isaac and Elizabeth Krum Davis, pioneer residents of the town of Marbletown.

The local unit of the Home Bureau will hold a meeting at 1:30 p. m., Tuesday, January 21, at the home of Mrs. Raymond Osterhoudt. This will be the first lesson in the hooked rug project as outlined by the county chairman, Miss Evelyn Nance.

Cross of Snow Protected

A Presidential proclamation set aside 1,320 acres of land in Holy Cross national forest of Colorado to protect the famous cross of snow. Holy Cross mountain is a peak in Colorado which takes its name from a gigantic Greek cross formed by two snow-filled crevices on the side of the mountain. The cross is visible for miles around and is an object of considerable public interest.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Local Death Record

Emil Schneble of Woodstock died Wednesday in this city. Funeral Friday at 8:30 a. m. from 46 Maiden Lane and at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Church where a Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of his soul. Interment in St. Mary's cemetery.

Hannah M. Atkins, widow of Jacob Christiana, died at the home of her son, Webster Christiana, at Accord, Wednesday, January 15, aged 90 years. Funeral services will be held from the late home on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment in Accord Rural Cemetery.

Gardiner, Jan. 16.—Frank Sheeley died very suddenly on Monday forenoon. Mr. Sheeley was a retired farmer and had many friends. He was about 50 years of age and is survived by his wife and daughter, Miss Verna Sheeley, principal of the Gardiner public school. Mr. Sheeley was in good health and his death was a great shock. The family have the sympathy of the community. Funeral was held this afternoon at his late home.

The funeral of Mary A. DuBois was held at her late home in Zena Wednesday, January 15. The Rev. A. L. Hughes, assisted by the Rev. J. M. Proctor conducted the services. The Rev. Mr. Proctor offered a prayer and the Rev. Mr. Hughes preached the funeral sermon. Mrs. S. C. DeWitt, conference evangelist, rendered a vocal solo. The deceased is survived by three sons and four daughters, 21 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren. Interment in the family plot at Zena.

Elvin L. Cole of Esopus died Tuesday night at the Kingston Hospital after a short illness. He was born in the village of Esopus and lived there all his life. Mr. Cole was known and liked by everyone and will be missed by his many friends. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Theresa Cole, one daughter, Sarah L. Cole of Hillside, N. J., and two sons, Norman Cole of Newark, N. J., and Scott Cole of Connecticut. Funeral at the funeral home of Ernest A. Kelly, 111 West Chester street. Interment in Montrepose cemetery.

Peter Buley of 115 South Manor avenue died on Tuesday, January 14. Funeral private. Interment in the Woodstock cemetery. Those who wish to view the remains may do so tonight between 7 and 8 o'clock at his late home. Besides his wife, who was Margaret Rowe, Mr. Buley is survived by three children, Ralph, Alvah D. and Mrs. Evelyn Zellit. For a number of years Mr. Buley was employed by the F. B. Matthews & Company and also by Laflin Rand Co. He was a member of Charles DeWitt Council, No. 91, J. O. U. A. M.

Mrs. Andrew Rathgeber, formerly Wilhelmina Schoenfeld, of 361 Albany avenue, died Wednesday at her home after patiently suffering from a long illness. Surviving are her husband, six daughters, Mrs. Elsie McLean, Mrs. Esther Thomas, Gertrude, wife of Charles Steinmiller, Margaret, wife of William McLane, Mrs. Olga Petersen, and Miss Frances Rathgeber, three sons, Walter, Andrew and Albert, and a brother, Emil Schoenfeld. She was a member of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer. Funeral from the late home on Saturday at 2 p. m. Burial in Montrepose cemetery.

Stone Ridge, Jan. 16.—Many friends of the late Peter W. Wells paid their last respects to him on Tuesday afternoon. The funeral services were held at the Reformed Church, with a large attendance. Several members of the town board as well as others acted as pall bearers. The services were in charge of the Rev. C. Van Tol of the Reformed Church, assisted by the Rev. C. P. Harder of the M. E. Church, and the Rev. S. G. Dunseath, pastor of the Episcopal Church. The Sons of Veterans, of which Mr. Wells was a member, conducted their service immediately after. Interment took place in the Fairview Cemetery at Stone Ridge.

Theodore B. Cornwell, a retired business man of Saugerties, died suddenly at his home on Wednesday from a heart attack. He was in his seventy-second year. He is survived by his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Isabel M. Sleight of Buffalo, and one son, Harold B. Cornwell of Saugerties; a sister, Mrs. Jennie Eckert of Phoenicia, and a brother, Charles E. Cornwell of Newburgh. For many years Mr. Cornwell conducted a general grocery business in Saugerties, retiring a few years ago when the business was continued by his son. He was a patron of T. B. Cornwell Fire Company No. 2, which was named in his honor. For many years he was a trustee and also a vice president of the Saugerties Savings Bank. Fraternally he was a member of Ulster Lodge, No. 193, F. & A. M., and William H. Raymond Lodge, No. 59, I. O. O. F. He also served as a member of the board of education, and at one time was a member of the village board of directors. In politics he was a Republican. Funeral services Friday afternoon.

POULTRYMEN ASSAILED COUNTY JUDGE ARNOLD.

Criticizing County Judge C. W. H. Arnold of Poughkeepsie for suspending sentence on Samuel Bodner who pleaded guilty to charges in connection with chicken stealing in Dutchess county, the Dutchess County Poultrymen's Association adopted a resolution Wednesday night in which it was stated that the association publicly went on record as dissatisfied with Judge Arnold's decision being no punishment for Bodner.

Carry Own Sunshine

A wise traveler goeth cheerily through fair weather and through-out. He knoweth that his journey must be sped, so he carries his sunshine with him.—M. Tupper.

Society Notes

Provenzano-Petramele.

Miss Frances Petramele and Salvatore Provenzano, both of Glasco, were united in marriage on Sunday, January 12, in St. Joseph's Church at Glasco. After a short honeymoon they will reside in a newly furnished home in Glasco.

Williams-Apuzzo.

Shokan, Jan. 16.—The first local wedding of the new year took place on Monday, January 13, at the residence of Judge David L. Windrum, when Frank Williams of New York city was married to Rose Apuzzo, of Olive Bridge, by the judge. The couple were attended by former town superintendent John Kelder and Mrs. Kelder. Mr. Williams is in the contracting business in New York, and he and his bride will make their home there.

PUBLIC NOTICE

STATE OF NEW YORK DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SERVICE—STATE DIVISION—ALBANY

CASE NO. 5968: January 8, 1930

In the matter of the Proceeding, under the Grade Crossing Elimination Act, for the elimination of the existing highway-railroad crossing at grade of the railroad operated by The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company and Plattekill-Modena County Highway No. 707 known as Plattekill crossing, located about 0.9 mile southwest of Modena station in the town of Plattekill, Ulster county.

NOTICE is hereby given that a public hearing will be held in the above matter by this Commission at the County Court House in the city of Poughkeepsie on January 27, 1930, at 9:30 A. M.

By the Commission.

FRANCIS E. ROBERTS, Secretary.

TO ASK NEW HOME FOR SUPREME COURT

Plan Most Beautiful Structure of Kind in World.

Washington.—One of the first items of business to be placed before the regular session of congress is a project to start work on the Supreme court building, planned as one of the most monumental and beautiful government structures in the world.

Chairman Keyes of the senate public buildings committee expects that this work can be started in the spring, now that the property on the two-block site facing the Capitol has been obtained by purchase and condemnation at a cost of nearly $2,000,000. Private buildings on the site must be razed.

The first appropriation may be a small one, but the entire great stone building will cost $9,740,000 under the congressional authorization, which may be increased later.

Huge Law Libraries.

Plans prepared by Cass Gilbert, architect, reveal the building as a massive, Corinthian structure, in harmony architecturally with the Capitol. The exterior design is of the classic type, and embodies carefully studied proportions and simple masses.

The building will have a maximum height of four stories, and the Supreme courtroom will be placed in the middle of the rectangular structure. Rooms for the justices, court officials and lawyers are to be grouped around four great courtyards within the structure.

The second and third floors will contain huge law libraries, a total of 500,000 volumes being provided for in the plans.

"It is not intended to finish the interior of the building with elaborate and expensive marble work and excessive decoration," Architect Gilbert said in submitting the plan which was accepted, said a recent announcement, "but to rely rather upon fine proportions with a sparing use of appropriate decoration for the monumental effect which is desired."

Building Fireproof.

The building will be strictly fireproof, and acoustics "must be as perfect as modern science can make them," Gilbert said.

Gilbert submitted a scale model of the building, several yards long, and detailed plans, before his project was approved both by the Fine Arts commission and the special Supreme court building commission. This latter commission, incidentally, has Former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri as a member, this being the only public office he retained when he retired from the senate. A special resolution was adopted to allow him to retain the position. Other members are Chief Justice Taft, Justice Van Devanter, Senator Keyes, Representatives Elliot and Lanham, and David Lynn, architect of the Capitol.

Among the buildings which must be torn down to make way for the huge building, 385 feet from east to west, and 304 feet from north to south, are several apartments and the old brick Capitol erected in 1814 after the British troops burned the Capitol. This building was used as a federal prison during the Civil war.

Historic Cathedral Is Threatened With Ruin

Lucera, Italy.—The historic Lucera cathedral—perhaps the most beautiful in South Italy—was threatened recently with destruction by water flowing from a mysterious underground source.

The water has started undermining the foundations of the structure, which was built in the early part of the Fourteenth century on the site of the Colossal Saracen Mosque. The infiltration started some days ago and officials, after attempting to find the source, said the cathedral appeared to be doomed unless the water is halted.

Many cellars in the central section of the city have been filled by water, some of them virtually transformed into reservoirs.

It was assumed that the infiltration was due to a leak in the recently constructed Apulian aqueduct, as well as a lack of proper sewage system. The definite cause, however, has not yet been ascertained.

Meanwhile, water is constantly being pumped from cellars and emptied into the streets by hoses, giving part of the city the appearance of a miniature Venice.

London-to-Paris Airway Fare Lowered to $15.50

London.—Air fares between London and Paris over the Imperial Airways line have been reduced for the 5 a. m. air liner from approximately $23.75 to approximately $15.50, thus for the first time becoming actually cheaper than the first-class railroad and boat fares between the two cities, via the Dover-Calais route. At the same time somewhat smaller reductions have been made for the winter on the London-to-Switzerland air route.

Shark Is Peered

Prince Rupert, B. C.—Large sharks again have been annoying trawlers on Shidegate Bar. Captain Eyolfsen, of the trawler Iceland, was towing a steel cylinder drum or buoy behind his boat, when a large shark jumped and, biting the drum, crushed it.

The drum was put on exhibition here.

Licensed to the Limit

A visiting Elk from Kansas came out to Los Angeles in his own car, so that after the big doings in Los Angeles were over he could make a motor tour of southern California. He got along all right in spite of the fruit fly quarantine and other little matters of routine until he got to Dagget. From then on he was stopped at almost every town. Finally, in Los Angeles he was grabbed once more.

"Let me see your license," demanded the officer.

"What is it this time?" asked Brother Bill meekly, "marriage, car, driver's camp fire, fishing or hunting? Open the license trunk, Ethel, and let the gentleman help himself."—Los Angeles Times.

Veteran Sailor

Capt. Walter M. Mallett, of Topsham, Maine, went to sea when he was a lad. At twenty-four he was a master and he followed his calling for 41 years. Although he had a license for steam he always stuck to sailing craft. Despite the superstitions that sailors attach to the presence of a woman on shipboard, Captain Mallet usually took his wife with him. She has rounded the Horn 28 times, while the captain has made it an even 40.

PORT EWEN

Port Ewen, Jan. 16.—Donations for the fancy article booth for the firemen's fair, January 20-23, may be left at the home of Mrs. A. B. Secor, Mrs. J. Groves, Mrs. H. Jump, Mrs. R. Van Leuven or at the home of the chairman, Mrs. F. Sleight, on or before January 18.

The official board of the Methodist Church will hold a turkey supper in the church house on February 13.

The Dorcas Society will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Ellsworth Doyle on Main street, Friday evening. Mrs. Doyle and Mrs. B. T. Van Aken will be the hostesses.

Everyone is invited to the tenth birthday anniversary of prohibition service which the W. C. T. U. will hold in the Reformed Church this evening. There will be special singing and the Rev. Mr. Goertz and the Rev. Mr. Baker will speak.

Louis Conn, who has been ill of grip, is able to be out again.

Epworth League members are asked to contribute to the food sale which the fourth department will hold in Jump's store at 2 p. m., Friday.

The Port Ewen firemen's fair opens in Pythian Hall Monday evening, January 20, and continues for four nights. An entertainment will be given the first three nights with dancing following each night's entertainment. The fourth night will be open for dancing all evening. Zucca's orchestra will furnish music for the dancing.

BENEFIT DANCE AND CARD PARTY AT NEW PALTZ.

The Women's Guild of Ascension Church will hold the third in a series of dances for the benefit of the Ascension Community House building fund, in the American Legion Hall, New Paltz, on Saturday evening, January 18, at 8 o'clock. These benefits, organized by the Parish Aid Department, of which Miss Rachel Sheldon of Kingston has been chairman, have been arranged so that the widely scattered membership of old Ascension Church might be able to help swell the fund in the towns near which they live. The committee in charge at New Paltz is made up of Miss Mabel Decker of New Paltz, Mrs. Howard Mackey of Plutarch, Mrs. Hudson Covert and Miss Elmira Covert of Lloyd.

A number of contributions in money have been received by the committee and quantities of sandwiches and refreshments have been promised.

A very happy time is promised to all who attend. Tickets may be purchased from any member of the committee or at the door.

A Pancake Dinner.

The Home Economics Committee of the Clintondale Grange will serve a pancake dinner in the Grange Hall Wednesday, January 22, from 12 o'clock until all are served.

ULSTER PARK.

Ulster Park, Jan. 16.—The Ladies' Aid of the Ulster Park Reformed Church will meet at the home of Mrs. Holt N. Winfield Friday, January 17 at 2:30 p. m. As this is the first meeting of the New Year a good attendance is desired.

Plain Talk

In asserting that we do business at less cost than most stores, we are making no extravagant claims.

No amount of volume business by any organization will enable them to undersell us on an average.

Our mark up on gross sales, we venture to say, is lower than any other store of our kind in the city.

We sell the best we can buy.

We sell at a fair margin of profit.

We render all kinds of service.

Al Simmons Took Honors in Batting in Runs

Chicago, Jan. 16 (AP).—Al Simmons performed his duty as cleanup man for the champion Philadelphia Athletics in championship style last season, leading the circuit in the important business of batting in runs, official 1929 averages revealed today.

The heavy swinging Philadelphian participated in 143 games and drove in 157 of the 901 runs scored all season by Connie Mack's team. Thirty-four times, he scored himself by home runs and came home with 80 more runs through the assistance of his mates.

Babe Ruth, playing eight less games than Simmons, was second with 154. The Bambino tied with his Yankee team-mate, Lou Gehrig, for the honor in 1928 with 142.

Simmons and Ruth were the only two American League batsmen to drive in an average of one or more runs a game during 1929. Dale Alexander, husky Detroit rookie, finished third by driving in 137 runs in 154 games while Gehrig was next, sending 126 runs across in 154 games. Other leaders and the number of runs they batted in were Heilmann, Detroit, 120; Foxx, Philadelphia, 117; Kress, St. Louis, 107; Gehringer, Detroit, 106; Lazzeri, New York, 106; and Fonseca, Cleveland first baseman, who won the American League batting championship, 103.

The best harvester of bases on balls for 1929 was Max Bishop of the Athletics. Bishop became so particular at what he swung at that he was given 128 passes to first base in 129 games. La Blue of St. Louis was second with 126 bases on balls in 151 games.

Gehrig got 133 free passes and Foxx worked the pitchers for 102, many of them intentional. Ruth, who has been honored for years with 100 or more free trips to first each season and who holds the record with 170, received by 72 in 145 games in 1929.

Joe Sewell retained his title as the hardest man in the American League to strike out, tying his own world's record of four strikeouts in 152 games. "Mickey" Cochrane of the Athletics struck out but eight times in 135 games while Sam Rice of Washington whiffed only nine times in 150 contests.

Jimmy Foxx, possessing a hit or nothing complex, was the easiest man to strike out among the regular batsmen, churning the air 70 times or two more than Gehrig and ten more than Ruth.

Dykes of Philadelphia, Schang of St. Louis and Reeves of Boston, each was hit by pitched balls seven times during the season. As a club, St. Louis received the most bases on balls, 589, while the Yankees struck out collectively 618 times.

Delaney Must Abandon Boxing.

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 16 (AP).—Jack Delaney, retired light heavyweight champion of the world, has fought his last fight. Dr. George W. Hawley, bone specialist, "wrote "finis" to Delaney's ring career last night when he declared that an injury to the right arm which has bothered the former champion for two years threatened to cripple the arm permanently unless Delaney abandons boxing.

Sport Slants

By Alan J. Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

A German band, brought out from winter quarters by the recent spring thaw, played the air of "A Bicycle Built for Two." Somehow, it reminded us of Gene Tunney. Charley the office boy dashed in. He had just met and interrogated the one-time great man of the ring. After being restored to some coherency he gave this report of the dialogue, begun in a drugstore and completed at a street-crossing:

"I said 'Hello, Gene', like that, and then I said 'Eddie Neil says you are not going to fight any more.' Is that right?"

"That's right."

"But suppose some foreigner wins the title?"

"No foreigner will win the title."

"Then I said 'but suppose, anyway, a foreigner DOES win it. Will you help keep the title in New York?' (I meant to say United States but all I could think of was New York.)"

"Yes, I would help keep it here."

Charley the office boy is convinced this patriotic sentiment means Tunney will return to the ring, if necessary to keep what remains of the heavyweight title safe for America. It will be a blow to him to realize that the retirement of the ex-champion is thoroughly permanent—permanent—foreigners or no foreigners.

Speaking of winning streaks, the greatest of them all, one that has lasted over a stretch of 79 years, will be at stake this year when Yankee yachtsmen defend the historic America's Cup against the challenge of the famous Irishman tea merchant, Sir Thomas Lipton.

This famous yacht-racing trophy first was won by America in British waters in 1851 and has been kept here ever since, in spite of a baker's dozen challenges. When English sportsmen gave up the quest, Sir Thomas Lipton carried on but the results have always been the same.

It was just 30 years ago that Lipton challenged with his Shamrock I. Successive challenges in 1901, 1903 and 1920 also ended in failure for the famous Irish sportsman. He has spent millions in an attempt to lift the ancient trophy and it is estimated that his outfitting of the Shamrock V for the 1930 races, to be held off Newport in September, will cost upwards of another million.

The America's Cup had an unusual origin. It seems that it just happened to acquire international importance through the victory of the Yankee sloop, America, over the British Aurora in a regatta off the Isle of Wight in 1851. The cup involved in this event was simply one of the numerous cups offered by the Royal Yacht Squadron for unlimited competition.

Afterward, one of the stories was that Queen Victoria, who witnessed the race and the America's victory, gave the trophy its present name. Another convention is that it was named the America's Cup by enthusiastic Americans upon its arrival here. The name of the victorious yacht also may have had something to do with it. At any rate it has been America's Cup ever since.

The boxing sheets advertise "Shirts for Hire" at "Boxing, Rotogravure, Acting, Basketball and what-not." Presumably, all on the same night.

Quintero Holds Mandell to Draw

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 16 (AP).—A ten-round non-title combat in which the ramming fists of young Manuel Quintero held Champion Sammy Mandell to a draw today put the young Cuban left hander near the front of the lightweight boxing picture.

Quintero's puzzling southpaw fighting style won him an even break in his engagement with the titleholder here last night. Promoter G. R. K. Cater said the inaugural of the winter fistic season in the Miami area attracted 11,000 persons who paid $32,000 to witness the match. Mandell's contract called for $10,000, he added, while Quintero worked on a 12½ per centage basis with a small guarantee.

Nursing a cut over his left eye, which required two stitches, Mandell said "what the referee says goes," in commenting on the decision rendered by Billy Haack of Memphis, who officiated without the air of judges. Quintero suffered small cuts about the mouth.

Quintero weighed 139½ and Mandell 137, but the champion waived the extra poundage before the start of the fight.

Jack Sharkey, who is to fight Phil Scott in Miami on February 27, Babe Ruth, former Governor Alfred E. Smith and other celebrities were at the ringside.

DUSO Game for Kingston Friday

Kingston High School Varsity basketball team tries for its second DUSO League win Friday at Ellenville where it will take on that community's high school quintet, which this season entered the DUSO circuit for the first time since its existence.

Coach Kins is confident that his Maroon and White squad will turn in a victory over Ellenville. Every man on the Kingston team showed up well in practice during the week, the Varsity registering big wins over the Second Team in several trial games.

Cullum and Fuchsle, Kingston's scoring aces in its first DUSO game, which was played last Friday against Port Jervis High School in the Tri-State city, have their shooting eyes trained for the Ellenville tilt and expect to roll up big tallies.

Kingston swamped Port Jervis by a 35-17 score. The Maroon and White squad expects to dash to victory over Ellenville by a greater margin and get a flier footing in their race for DUSO honors.

The local varsity's third league contest will be played against Port Jervis on Friday, January 24, at Kingston High School gymnasium.

While the Kingston High School Varsity is shooting it out with Ellenville this Friday, the Second team of the local school will be trying its hand against the Kerhonkson High School team at Kerhonkson.

Spinny's Meet Gascos Tonight

Tonight at Pythian Hall, Port Ewen, Spinny's Radio Five and the Gascos of Poughkeepsie will clash in a game that promises to hold plenty of interest and display a brand of action that will keep the fans on edges from start to finish.

The Port Ewenere, who have scalped some real good teams this season, are eager to hand a setback to the Gascos. The Poughkeepsians have registered successfully in their games with outstanding Dutchess county Fives and have signified intentions of going after the championship of the Hudson valley. If the Gascos get over Spinny's they will consider their chances very good.

Earl Terwilliger, who has been absent from the Spinny lineup for the past several months, owing to a broken arm received while playing football with the Yellow Jacket team, will be back in the line of duty tonight. Besides Terwilliger the Spinny's lineup will contain the names of Dan Joyce, "Bing" Van Etten, Wes Hyatt, Bill Smith, A. and J. Short.

Previous to the Spinny-Gasco feature the Port Ewen Men's Club and the Young Judaeans of this city will be opponents. The game will get under way at 7:30 and will be followed immediately by the main attraction.

MOHAWKS SUCCUMB TO ST. JOHN'S JUNIORS.

After battling on even terms in the first half, which ended 11 all, the Mohawks were unable to stand the pace set by St. John's Junior quintet in the second half of their game played Wednesday night at the Saints' court. Inaccurate foul shooting robbed the Mohawks of eight points for they made good on only seven out of 15 tries. The St. John boys sank four out of eight free throws. A. Hazenbush, of St. John's, was leading scorer of the game. He collected 14 points. Newell, of the Mohawks, came through with 13 markers.

"Pop" And "Doc" At It Once More; Renewal Of Old Feud Set For '30

"Doc" Spears, Minnesota University football coach (left) and "Pop" Warner (right) coach of Leland Stanford's grid warriors, who will re-open an old feud when their teams meet again next year.

Minneapolis, (AP).—When "Pop" Warner's Leland Stanford team meets Minnesota here next fall there's going to be a little side-play between the two opposing "benches."

Several years ago, when "Pop" was coaching Pittsburgh and when Dr. Clarence Spears, present Minnesota mentor, coached West Virginia, the two teams used to meet and the rivalry was pretty keen.

After the last of three games, played in three successive seasons, "Pop" had won twice and Dr. Spears once.

Spears came to Minnesota in 1925 and the coaching contest ended—for the time being. Next fall it will be renewed again, and the revival will last for two years, at least, just long enough for "Doc" to reverse the score—if his team wins both games.

During Dr. Spears' 11 years as head coach of football teams he has won 66 games out of a total of 91, lost 18 and tied 7.

DUKE'S HIGH SCORING FIVE SETS PACE IN DIXIE RACE

Duke's basketball five, which registered 275 points in its first four games, is setting a dizzy pace in Dixie. Among the big guns Councillor, forward; Werber, guard, and Captain Farley, guard. Councillor and Werber are in their eighth season together.

BY DILLON GRAHAM
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Durham, N. C. (AP).—A boisterous youngster, Duke university, is causing the Southern conference grown-ups no end of basketball worry.

Paced by a 6 foot 4 inch center and a pair of stars who are in their eighth season together, the baby member of the Dixie loop piled up 275 points in its first four games, an average of 68.

Making their bow in Southern conference basketball last season, the Blue Devils plugged away to finish second to North Carolina State for the Dixie title. This year the Devils look even better.

Joe Croson, beanpole center, has been the big scoring threat, registering 94 points in four contests for an average of 23 points a game. In his first two tilts the big boy counted 68 points.

The eight-year buddies are Harry Councillor, dynamite midget forward, and Bill Werber, one of the south's flashiest guards. This pair and Croson played together two years with a Washington, D. C. high school five and had a grand reunion as Devil sharpshooters a year ago.

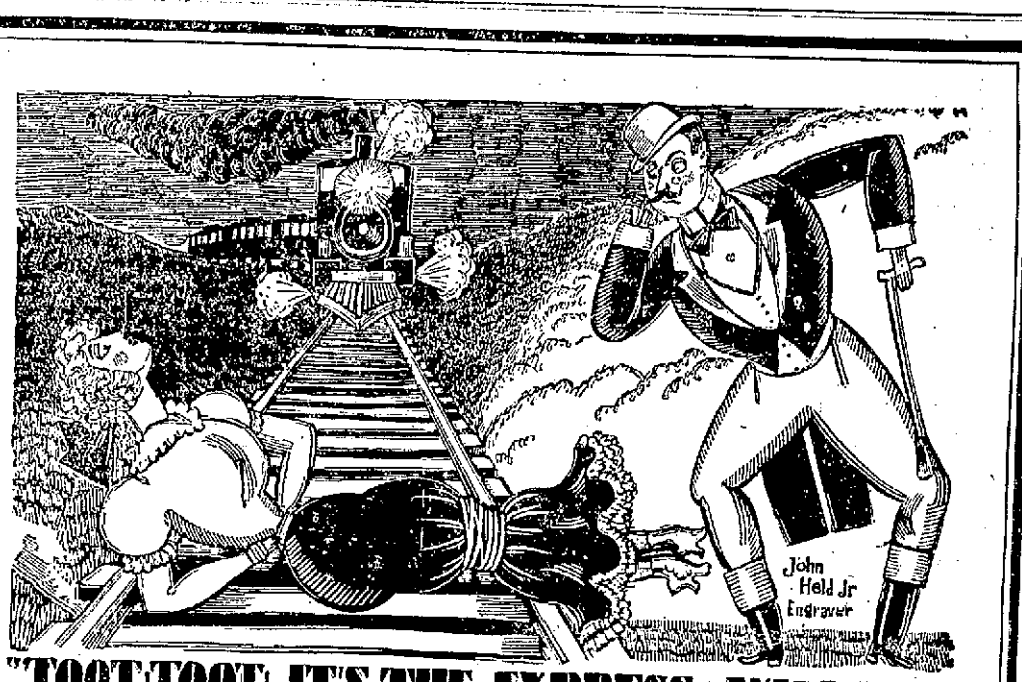
All of Duke's players except Croson are small, depending on speed and deception for their victories.



"TOOT! TOOT! IT'S THE EXPRESS. WILL YOU YIELD OR BE GROUND BENEATH THE WHEELS?" ROARED INGLESBY

"Never!" cried Our Nell, bound to the rails, her eyes blazing with defiance. "Death is preferable to a life with such as you."

"How do you make that out?" he purred.

"A rasping voice such as yours would make life a living hell," she answered him. "Unbind me, change to OLD GOLDS and maybe I'll listen to reason."

INTERMEDIATES DOWN RANGERS BY 54-28 TALLY.

The Clinton Avenue M. E. Intermediates had an easy time with the Rangers Wednesday night at Epworth Hall, where they drubbed them into submission by a 54-28 tally. "Bloody" Myers, left forward of the Intermediates, gleaned 23 points and led the individual scorers. Boss, his teammate, accounted for 13. "Bing" VanEtten, by scoring 16 points, kept his team, the Rangers, from getting a worse beating than they received. The score:

HOBOKEN GERMANS TO PLAY HIGHLAND

Highland Hose Company quintet's opposition in the regular weekly game Friday at Smith's Hall, Highland, will be furnished by the Hoboken Germans, a fast aggregation of courtmen who are expected to make the Highlanders step faster than they have in any game this season.

The Hoboken boys are a tricky bunch, who have scored wins over some outstanding quintets. They took the measure of the prominent Slotes this year, which gives fans of this locality a chance to gauge their calibre. In the Germans' lineup will be Bill Johnson of the Johnson Brothers Five that beat Highland, 29-23, some weeks ago at Smith's Hall.

Y. M. C. A. SENIORS PLAY AT HUDSON TONIGHT

The Y. M. C. A. Seniors journey to Hudson tonight to play the Boys' Club of that city. The up-state quintet has a splendid reputation, having conquered some of the best amateur teams in this section of the state this season. On the other hand the local aggregation is a strong team. A closely contested battle is expected to take place.

DASHERS BEAT REDEEMERS; SEEK OTHER BOOKINGS.

The Dashers, a basketball team composed of girls, who recently outscored the Redeemer Girls, 22-8, at Epworth Hall, wish to book games with other girls' teams of this vicinity. Miss Janet Evans of 672 Broadway, whose 'phone number is 1060-J, is manager of the team. The Dashers expect to play at Kerhonkson on Friday night.

NICK ZINNA FIGHTS AT WHITE PLAINS TONIGHT.

Nick Zinna, local lightweight, and Augustine Perez of New York will meet tonight at White Plains armory in the feature bout of a National Guard card. It is expected that Zinna will have a tough time with Perez, who defeated Pete "Kid" Buckman at the last bouts held in the armory here.

Under date of August 4, 1770, George Washington wrote in his journal: "Dined at the Barbicue with a great deal of other company, and stayed there 'till sunset." And we think we are modern with our roadside "Bar-B-Q's."

A New York man suggests that useless automobiles be dismembered and shipped west to be built into the flood-control levies of the Mississippi. Why not add the countless tons of unread speeches of congressmen?

Rookie Third Sacker Picked To Cure Reds' Holdover Headache

One reason Cincy bought the Columbus club was to get a certain recruit. He failed but Columbus now has produced Chic Cuccinello. And Chic looks like a sure shot.

By JAY VESSELS
Sports Editor
(Associated Press Feature Service)

New York (AP).—A small package containing one midget ball player, consigned to Cincinnati, may be the cure the Reds need for a very bad headache.

The headache, it seems, was contracted when Cincy bought a whole ball club to get one promising rookie. That rookie fizzled but the club the next season produced another prospect that promises to make the original investment pay a good return.

Chic Cuccinello is the new youngster who is counted upon to make Redville forget the disappointment over the failure of Jersey Joe Stripp to come up to expectations.

The dope is that the Reds decided to buy the Columbus franchise of the American Association two years ago after finding that the price on Stripp alone represented a sizeable portion of the value of the whole club.

Stripp was not a big success but while he was falling down Young Cuccinello, alternating between second and third, was setting the A. A. on fire.

Furthermore, Chic finished second among the big thumping troupe in the A. A. last year. He whaled the ball at a .358 clip, getting 56 doubles, 10 triples and 20 homers. And that is tolerably good swatting for a fellow who weighs only 155 pounds.

Chic, a native of Astoria, N. Y., signed with Syracuse in the International League in 1926. He was farmed to Lawrence in the New England loop where he batted .283. For the same club in 1927, he batted .310.

Going to Danville in the Three-I circuit in 1928 he again hit .310 and late in the summer was bought by Columbus where he batted .396 in 14 games.

FURTHER ATTACK ON SUBSIDIZING

Savage Makes First Address Since Carnegie Report.

Howard Savage of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching made a further attack on the subsidizing of athletes by colleges and universities in a speech before the Sportsmanship brotherhood. Mr. Savage declared that although the practice of recruiting high school and preparatory school athletes "probably is diminishing gradually," the situation still "is so serious that it should engage the attention of every sportsman."

"The recruiting of athletes is no simple matter and its rights and wrongs are not so immediately obvious as one might wish," said Mr. Savage. "The practice seldom, and probably never, exists without the use of subsidies. As the fisherman baits his hook, so the recruiter dangles the subsidy before the eager eyes of the preparatory or high school athletes. So widely recognized are the practices that a complementary practice has developed among schoolboys, known as 'shopping around,' in which the schoolboy without waiting for overtures from the college or its recruiter, may offer by correspondence and even by telegraph his athletic services to the highest bidder among the colleges."

Football was once a brutal game for the player. Now it is brutal for the reporter who must keep track of from 10 to 30 substitutions on each side per game.

The Carnegie Foundation fans imply football has made it soft for the reporters.

If reporting was unnecessary all those who report the games could attend them the same as anyone else and enjoy himself like anyone else.

He could keep his fingers in warm gloves, see and listen to the bands and cheer leaders, get out of the stadium as soon as the rest, and yell all he liked.

His one advantage, among many disadvantages, is the fact that he doesn't have to pay to get in.

Possibility of a professional ice hockey league in Texas was seen in the visit at Dallas of Benny Leonard, former lightweight boxing champion, and owner of the Pittsburgh hockey team of the National league.

Leonard revealed he was visiting the principal cities of the state for the purpose of studying this section's reaction to the winter sport.

Dallas and San Antonio are the only cities of the state which have gone in for ice hockey in a big way so far. Rinks are planned in several other cities.

Paavo Nurmi will not be an American visitor this coming indoor track season, but in the visit of Stanislaus Pietkiewicz, the Polish champion who conquered the Flying Antelope of Abo in a special 5,000-meter race at Berlin last summer, the American public may see an even better runner. Just where the Polish champion will run in the United States has not been given notice as yet.

Robert Spreadling, an Indiana boy who chose to go to the University of Iowa rather than Purdue, where his brother George made basketball history a few years ago, seems destined to lead Iowa's first cage campaign in many years outside of the Western conference.

Spreadling, forced to take over the center duties when several basketball regulars were declared ineligible, has been the key man in the Hawkeye attack.

College football—the big commercialized sport of the amateurs—is no more commercialized than are college baseball, track, soccer, boxing, wrestling, and basketball. And only basketball, of the other sports named, ever gives a college a chance to break even.

But football is commercialized—by the critics—because it makes money.

Mediocrity never attracts attention, but success does.

Were the football crowds to gradually dwindle to the size of the turnouts of baseball and track there would be a letup in the cry of the critics.

Scandal frequently breaks about the head of a rich or famous man, but there is just as much scandal, perhaps, in the lives of the less famous and less rich. But no one gives a hang.

But football is so great that it can afford to be indifferent to the cry of the critics.

Sunday School League Results

Comforters Outscore Presbyterians in Flashy Game—St. John's Fall Before Congregationals.

One of the best battles of the Senior Sunday School League was staged at the "Y" court Wednesday night when the Presbyterians fell before the Comforters, 41 to 32. The Redeemer-St. James game was postponed by St. James. The last game of the night was a 35 to 11 victory for the Congregationals over St. John's.

The opening game was nip and tuck up until the final minutes of play. Neither surpassed the other in any point of playing. Excellent defense and pass work by both teams made the game what it was. The first quarter ended with the score 11-10 in the Comforter's favor.

Holding the leading position by such a slim margin the Comforters continued to keep the pace that they set at the beginning. However, they were always a point or two better than the Presbyterians. The whistle sounded for the end of the first half and the Comforters had 22 points to the Presbyterians 20.

The lead changed hands in the third quarter. The Presbyterians suddenly began to spend most of their time on offensive duty. This was when they secured the upperhand. The tally stood in the Comforter's favor, 24-25. Niles caged a once and Smith a field goal, putting the Presbyterians in front, 27-25. This didn't last long before the quarter ended and the score was 27-30, Comforters leading once more.

The final session was all in favor of the Comforters, for they rolled up 11 marks. Kieffer topped the list of individual scorers with 21 points. Niles, with 16, did the best shooting for the Presbyterians.

The last game was a one-sided affair from the beginning. The Congregationals took the lead and steadily added to it. The score was 17-5 at the half with the Coongregationals on top. In the third period St. John's went scoreless while their opponents went up to 25. The last session saw St. John's collect six marks and the contest ended. Congregationals, 35; St. John's, 11.

ROAD BUILDING TO GET NEW IMPETUS

Highway Officials Make Plans in Line With President's Program.

(By James W. Brooks—Director, American Highway Educational Bureau.)

Impelled by forces now getting behind public work of every character, and especially under the leadership of President Hoover, plans are in the making for increased activity in road building as one of the most far-reaching and constructive agencies in national progress.

In preparation for this objective, and for the consideration of other matters concerning highway improvement, members of the American Association of State Highway Officials have just held their regular annual meeting at San Antonio, Texas. This body is composed exclusively of highway officials who represent every state in the Union, and who also co-operate closely with the federal government in the administration of federal aid. At this meeting, legislative and financial needs in highway work for the immediate future were discussed and a resolution was passed recommending to congress that the federal aid appropriation be increased to $125,000,000.

Federal Aid Project.

In carrying on their part of the nation's work, highway officials are stressing the importance of completing the main federal aid project as originally planned. This plan, it will be recalled, was to complete state and interstate routes first in order to save motor vehicle revenues from the drain of excessive repair costs where roads are not built sufficiently strong in the first instance to sustain heavy traffic.

As to the wisdom of proceeding with increased activity on the original program, those in highway leadership assert that they are in line with President Hoover's engineering views on such matters. These views were expressed in one of his pre-election speeches at St. Louis and again on his recent visit to Cincinnati and Louisville in connection with waterway improvement. Tersely stated, it was the President's expressed judgment that trunk line waterways should be improved first, and highway officials in their recent conferences at San Antonio have again attested to the soundness of that principle as a means of conserving and making the safest possible use of highway construction capital.

Use of Highways.

Taking the country as a whole, the use of public highways is increasing at an amazing rate. Likewise motor vehicle operating waste is increasing where highways have not yet been brought up to modern standards in construction. This situation may be taken as a lesson that not only should there be no let up in road building, especially on routes that are heavily traveled, but that public work of this character should be intensified. It may be taken also as a reminder that there should be no evasion of the obligation due to motorists who have acquiesced in gasoline tax levies in the various states upon the assurance that the main traffic channels of the country would be pressed to completion as early as possible and thus take care of between 75 and 85 per cent of the country's traffic before attempting to stretch the federal aid principle beyond its present scope.

With the initiative which President Hoover is taking in all internal improvement matters, it is expected that highway building soon will be greatly increased and thereafter maintained at a speed that will insure not only sustained employment in that particular field, but great profit to the country.

Carbon May Be Present

Use of high volatility, antiknocking gas may remove the noise traditionally associated with the presence of carbon in the engine, but it does not always mean that carbon is absent. Particularly after a winter of frequent choke use, there is likely to be carbon even if it is not causing the familiar old knock. It should be removed if inspection reveals an excess. Why not test the valve springs at the same time?

The Motor Quiz

How Many Can You Answer?

Q. Why should tires be changed from one wheel to another?

Ans. More mileage can be obtained from them if this is done. Tires that are run in the same position continuously develop wear peculiar to that position and if changed about wear is distributed.

Q. Why should the dust that collects on the headlight lenses be removed?

Ans. To improve illumination.

Q. What other effect, aside from safety, results from the brakes being kept in good condition?

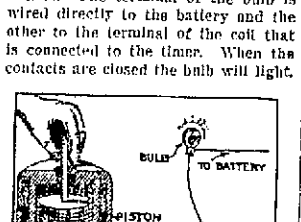
Ans. Conservation of the driver's energy.

Q. What will be the result if spark plugs are insecurely installed in the cylinder?

Ans. Leakage of hot gases between the plug and cylinder threads will occur, causing the plug to run too hot, resulting in loss of power.

Spark Time Indicator Is Very Useful Device

It is difficult to locate the exact point at which the contacts in the timer break and thereby cause the spark in the cylinder. You can, however, wire an electric light bulb, as shown, to get an absolute indication of the exact moment when the contact breaks. One terminal of the bulb is wired directly to the battery and the other to the terminal of the coil that is connected to the timer. When the contacts are closed the bulb will light.



When the Timer Contacts Are Closed, the Bulb Lights; When They Break, the Light Goes Out.

When the contacts break, the bulb will go out.

This method of timing or checking the ignition system is one which will be found helpful not only to the garage mechanic but to the motorist who works on his own car in his spare time. It does away with guesswork, and because of its simplicity of operation saves considerable time on the job.—Popular Science Monthly.

Kingston Post Meeting Friday

Will Observe Fourth Anniversary of Completion and Dedication of Building—Many Matters of Importance To Be Discussed.

The regular monthly meeting of Kingston Post will be held Friday evening in the American Legion Memorial Building.

A feature of the meeting will be the observance of the fourth anniversary of the completion and dedication of the building. A huge birthday cake, bearing four candles, will formally open the birthday party which will be held after the meeting. The cake will be cut by the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley J. Matthews, who arrived in the world at the Kingston Hospital on the same night on which the American Legion Memorial Building was dedicated. So, she too, will celebrate her fourth birthday.

A brief history will be sketched of the American Legion building campaign, during which most of the funds were raised to erect the building.

A great many matters of great importance are to be taken up at the business session and a large attendance is requested by the Commander.

Plans are now going forward for a large delegation of Ulster County Legionnaires to attend the State Legislative dinner in the Hotel Ten Eyck at Albany on January 28th. A dinner is to be held at Golden Rule Inn during February in honor of Past State Commander Douglas I. McKay which will be a similar one to that tendered Past National Commander Spafford some weeks ago.

Owing to the great success of the court martial put on Wednesday night by the Post at the Legion building, other activities of a like nature are being talked about. Commander Finch wants everyone to come to the meeting with ideas and then a will to work the ideas out to a successful finish.

Membership Chairman Tom Murray asks that as many delinquent members as possible pay their dues Friday. We would like to have at least 451 paid-up members in the local post by January 25. This would beat by one member the record membership of Kingston Post on the date of a State Legislative dinner. Membership Chairman Murray, after his fine acting in the skit, is expected to have cooperation of the entire post in rolling up the 800 members he is after this year for the American Legion.

Backbone of a Camel

The backbone of the single-humped camel is not curved upward in the middle, as many people suppose. It is as straight as the backbone of a horse or elephant. Humps on all camels are composed chiefly of fat and they vary in size according to the physical condition of the animals. When they are worked hard and poorly fed their humps shrivel up and become flaccid. Much of the ability of camels to travel long distances over the desert without food and water is due to this extra fat in their humps. The surplus fat is reabsorbed by the body when the animal does not get sufficient food and water. Thus the hump serves as a sort of commissary department from which the animal receives sustenance in time of famine. In certain breeds of sheep extra fat is stored in the tail.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Early Puritan Picnic

Perhaps the gentle reader would be interested in knowing how the Puritan chieftain of the Massachusetts Bay colonists spent his first day in New England.

After exchange of greetings with Governor Endicott of the Salem colonists, Governor Winthrop says:

"We . . . returned with them to Nathumeak, where we supped with a good venison pasty and good beer, and at night we returned to our ship.

"In the meantime most of our people went on shore upon the land of Cape Ann, which lay very near us, and gathered store of fine strawberries."—Boston Post.

Black and Blue Spots

Those black and blue spots we sometimes find on various parts of the body are bruises. They are the most common of all injuries. Sometimes we find them and wonder how we got them. Bruises result when we receive a fall or are struck by a blunt instrument that doesn't break the skin. If the injury is slight no treatment is necessary, but cold compresses will help. In severe bruises apply the cold compresses, elevate the injured part to diminish the pain, then apply witch-hazel or some other soothing lotion. Be sure it is only a bruise and that no bones are broken.—Exchange.

Ireland's Bottomless Bogs

The Irish bogs are almost as great in extent as those of Germany. While the latter are from 9 feet to 20 feet deep, the Irish variety often reaches 40 feet and are sometimes apparently bottomless. It has been calculated that each acre of bog contains 18,231 tons of peatstuff.
